January Cold Wave Swings Eastward; No Relief In Sight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A late January cold wave engulfed wide areas in the eastern half of the nation today and there was no indication of immediate relief.

Snow, subzero temperatures and strong winds were in prospect for the Midwest, hardest hit by the coldest weather of the winter season.

The Arctic air swept into the East from the snow-covered Midwest bringing the coldest weather of the season to many sections.

In most of the South temperatures dropped to below or near freezing all the way to the Gulf of Mexico.

It was colder in some parts of New York State than in the Midwest where temperatures were not as low today as Thursday.

Northern New York State got the full blast of the icy air with 20 below in Watertown and -15 in Massena. There also were subzero readings in parts of Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Washington shivered in 12 degree readings, the lowest of the winter season.

In the South, it was 14 at Richmond, Va.; 17 at Knoxville; 25 at Atlanta, 34 in Mobile, Ala., and 22 in Birmingham, Ala.

Snow tapered off during the night over most of the Midwest and parts of the plains, bringing a measure of relief from Thursday's biting cold.

It was 17 degrees below zero in International Falls, Minn., early today, about 19 degrees warmer than Thursday's -36.

But strong, northerly winds spread more cold air from Canada southeastward across the Northern Plains and the icy blasts were predicted for the Midwest by tonight.

There was only light precipitation in the East, with flurries in the eastern Great Lakes region and in New England.

At least three deaths were attributed to the cold weather. A woman in Chicago and a man in Cleveland died of exposure. Another man died in Cleveland while shoveling snow.

Night Club Haunts Combed For Clue In Rubinstein Murder

NEW YORK (AP) —Fifty detectives early today combed plush East Side night club haunts of the slain Serge Rubinstein, Russian - born playboy, financier and convicted draft dodger.

Stymied after hours of intensive investigation, police tried the night spots for anyone who might shed light on the last movements of the 46-year-old Rubinstein, found mysteriously murdered Thursday on a bedroom floor of his palatial Fifth avenue mansion.

Slain By Strangler

He had been trussed with a venetian blind cord, and several layers of surgical tape were around his throat and mouth. The face bore several abrasions but the rest of his body was unmarked.

After a three - hour autopsy Thursday night, the medical examiner's office reported: "Rubinstein died of manual strangulation."

The ornate bedroom on the third floor of the six-story house had been ransacked but police could find nothing missing. A safe in the 20-foot-square room was untouched.

Authorities questioned three persons, including brunette Estelle Gardner, a model, who said she had dinner with Rubinstein Wednesday night and returned with him to his home.

Found By Butler

Rubinstein's body was found by the family butler William Morter at 8:30 a.m. Thursday.

Also in the house at the time of the slaying were the dead man's 78-year-old mother Stella; his aunt Genia Forrester, 82; a woman cook, and two parlormaids. The home was barred and locked and there was no sign of forcible entry.

A boy wonder in Wall Street, a dashing figure in the continental capitals of the world, Rubinstein served 2½ years in prison for draft dodging in World War II. He was ordered deported in 1952 and his appeals from the order still are pending.

Woman Fanatic Beats Up Boy, 5

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — George Stanley, whose 29-year-old sister admits the brutal beating of his 5-year-old son, told officers Thursday night he didn't want her prosecuted, preferring to "leave her fate up to the Lord."

The 32 - year - old unemployed father from Houston, Tex., made the statement after visiting the youngster's bedside. Physicians said the child, Lloyd George, was so badly beaten that they have doubts he will recover.

Mrs. Virginia Frances Thompson, 29, and her husband Lawrence 32, were jailed in Pauls Valley Tuesday night. They were arrested at their farm homes by officers who were tipped that the 5-year-old youngster was in serious condition.

Mrs. Thompson said the youngsters annoyed her husband and were "always moaning and groaning."

She said the 5-year-old child is "possessed of the Devil" and that she and her husband prayed for him, but the child "wouldn't help God."

Democrats Try To Kill Deal On Private Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic members plan to put the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee on record today for cancellation of the Dixon-Yates power contract but a Republican member said it was a meaningless gesture.

The group meets behind closed doors to act on a resolution proposed Thursday by the 10 Democrats who form the committee majority.

It would call on the Atomic Energy Commission to cancel the long - disputed contract. Also would rescind the waiver adopted by the joint committee last Nov. 13 to speed action on it.

However, Rep. W. Sterling Cole (R-NY), former chairman of the committee and now senior House Republican member, told a reporter in advance of the meeting that adoption of the resolution would "have no legal effect whatsoever."

The contract, negotiated by the AEC at President Eisenhower's order, calls for the Dixon-Yates private power group to build a 107-million-dollar plant at West Memphis, Ark. The current generated there would go to the Tennessee Valley Authority to replace TVA power used by AEC.

The deal has been bitterly fought by many Democrats, particularly those from the TVA area. It has been widely supported by Republican lawmakers.

Treasury Issues 40-Year Bond

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Treasury has announced it will issue a 40-year bond Feb. 1, a move officially signaling confidence that the business downturn has ended.

Announcement of the ultra-long-term issue—the longest since the 50-year bond of 1911 to pay for the Panama Canal — came late Thursday.

It was one fourth per cent below the rate on a 30-year bond the Treasury issued in April 1953 as the first—and until now only—single long stride in the Eisenhower administration's announced policy of putting more of the public debt into long-term issues.

Ford Of Canada Strike Settled

TORONTO, Ont. (AP) — CIO United Auto Workers have ended their 110-day strike against Ford of Canada.

Union and company negotiators reached agreement on a new wage contract Thursday after more than four weeks of steady bargaining.

Terms of settlement include company - paid hospital - medical insurance for employes and their families, an Ontario-wide agreement covering three Ford plants, a modified union shop, a four-cent hourly improvement factor to be effective June 15, a seventh paid holiday and inclusion of an eight-cent cost-of-living allowance in the base pay.

The contract will expire June 1, 1956.

The walkout had idled more than 7,000 employes, and was the longest in Ford of Canada's history.

Involved were the company's assembly plant at Oakville, near Toronto, its parts depot in suburban Etobicoke, and the big Windsor factory on the Canadian side of the Detroit River.

The strike was costly to both sides.

It delayed introduction of Ford's 1955 models and toppled the company from the sales leadership it had held in Canada during the first quarter of 1954.

The dispute cost the union an estimated million dollars in cash, strike benefits and food vouchers for strikers and their families.

Private Says Major Aided Red Captors

FT. SILL, Okla. (AP)—A military court today scrutinized a young soldier's testimony that Maj. Ambrose H. Nugent told him in a North Korean prison camp that he had prepared enemy surrender leaflets.

Nugent, 44-year-old artilleryman, is being tried on 13 charges he collaborated with his Red captors. One of the foremost is that he lent his name and photograph for appeals for American fighters to lay down their arms and join the foe.

The officer's defenders were to start the final session of the trial's opening week by questioning further Sgt. Milford L. Stearns, the witness who said Nugent informed him he "made" the leaflets.

Stearns, 25, an Army aviation man from Ft. Knox, Ky., testified that in private conversation with Nugent the officer showed him a speech he had written and asked Sterns to read it to other POWs.

Stearns said he protested that the material "could get you in trouble." The accused replied, Stearns asserted, that he had "made leaflets worse than that" to be dropped over American lines.

Nugent added that all he would have to do when he returned home would be to say he was forced to sign the material "and nothing would be done about it"

U. S. And Britain Will Invite Peiping To Cease-Fire Talks

Chances Improve For Profits Tax On Corporations

LANSING (AP)—Republican legislative leaders today were more restrained than usual in their traditional opposition to Gov. Williams' oft-repeated demand for a corporation profits tax.

No Republican stepped right out and endorsed the governor's request, but a number said they thought the legislative climate was more favorable for passage this year than ever before.

Williams, seeking to wipe out a 46 million deficit in the budget he recommended for next year, has proposed a five per cent corporation profits tax to bring in 110 million dollars.

As an offset against this, Williams would repeal the 30-year-old corporation franchise tax and exempt corporations from the present business receipts tax.

The net result would be 44 million dollars more in revenue, the governor said.

One Senate leader, Sen. Edward Hutchinson (R-Fennville) said he tought the Legislature was "more receptive" to the profits tax this year than ever before, but he added, "I am interested that the governor believes corporations should not pay a tax unless they make a profit, while small businesses and individuals should pay whether they make a profit or not."

This was a reference to the fact that the business receipts tax is based on business volume, not on profits.

Rep. Allison Green (R-Kingston), the House Tax Committee chairman, said the corporation profits tax would slump in times of depression and that they believed the present franchise and receipts taxes to be more stable.

Eisenhower Formosa Policy Promised Quick Senate OK

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate leaders pressed today for quick approval of President Eisenhower's Formosa defense policy, but critics indicated they wanted to do some more talking.

"I think the vote must come today," said Sen. Knowland of California, the Republican leader. "It would be bad psychologically to continue the delay."

He thus took the same line as that voiced yesterday by Chairman George (D-Ga) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. George told the Senate it should not use "trifling amendments" or long delays to rob the resolution of its psychological impact.

Night Session Planned

The resolution, which would give advance approval to the measures Eisenhower deems necessary to protect Formosa and the Pescadores Islands, passed the House Tuesday 409-3.

That the senate will also approve was conceded by almost everyone. The only question was when.

Sen. Clements (D-Ky), acting majority leader, said he would hold the Senate in session tonight or order a Saturday session if that would bring a final vote.

Knowland and Chairman Russell (D-Ga) of the Armed Services Committee said they thought some of the steam had been taken out of the opposition by a statement issued yesterday by the White House.

Sen. Morse (Ind-Ore) contended, on the other hand, that the statement is "a tacit admission" that the resolution is broad enough to give advance authorization "to make a preventive war strike" at the China mainland.

Critics Answered

The statement said Eisenhower, at a conference with military officials, had made it clear that U.S. forces in the area of Chiang Kai-shek's Formosa "were designed purely for defensive purposes."

"Any decision to use United States forces other than in immediate self-defense or in direct defense of Formosa and the Pescadores would be a decision which he (Eisenhower) would take and the responsibility for which he has not delegated," the White House said.

The statement was intended as a reply to criticism by some senators that the resolution might open the way for Chiang to drag this country into war with Red China, or that a "preventive war" might be launched by some impetuous American officer.

Boats Lost With 40 Fishermen

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP)—Forty British fishermen, missing off Iceland's stormy coast, have been given up as victims of the ship-sinking "black frost." Arctic storms also were believed to have claimed the lives of eight Icelandic sailors.

The Britons have not been heard from since their two trawlers, out of Hull, England, sent out distress signals off Iceland's North Cape Wednesday night. Authorities abandoned hope for them Thursday night after an air and surface search of the stormy seas.

The Icelanders were crewmen of another trawler which grounded Wednesday off the island's northwest coast and broke up. Reports from the scene said 26 other crewmen were rescued.

The "black frost" is a freezing spray which blankets northern seas, coating ships with a heavy layer of ice. Unless crews can hack the ice away in time, its weight can capsize a small vessel.

Two-Cent Gas Tax Boost Proposed By Lansing Lawmakers

LANSING (AP) — House Republicans today offered a two-cent gas tax increase as a counter-proposal to Gov. Williams' plan for a 500 million dollar highway bond issue.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Emil A. Peltz (R-Rogers City), would increase the gas tax from 4½ to 6½ cents a gallon. It would not go into effect unless approved by the voters.

Peltz also filed a bill to allow cities, townships, villages and counties to issue highway construction revenue bonds backed by gas tax diversion money.

Speaker Wade Van Valkenburg (R-Kalamazoo) said the twin bills do not represent the final Republican highway program.

"We wanted to get the bills introduced in time for a referendum at the April election," Van Valkenburg said.

Rep. George M. Van Perusem (R-Zeeland) filed legislation to permit county allocation boards to use state equalized valuations of the previous year in fixing assessments. He said that now allocation boards do not receive the state equalization figure in time for the current year's assessment.

Other bills would:

Authorize a referendum among state employes on whether they want to come under social security coverage.

Permit liquor - by - the - glass licensees to continue in new villages or cities until the first election after a charter election, at which time the voters would decide on liquor sale policies.

Authorize the state to join an interstate compact to develop and protect water resources in the Great Lakes basin.

Two Crews Killed In Copter Collision

STUTTGART, Germany (AP)—Two U.S. Army helicopters on a training exercise crashed and burned Thursday night within 25 minutes of each other, killing both three-man crews.

The helicopters crashed about 500 yards apart while trying to land on the side of a small hill six miles north of Stuttgart, an Army spokesman said. The cause has not been established. Names were withheld.

Nationalist Planes Bomb Red Troops And Shipping

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Nationalist warplanes struck new blows at Chinese Red shipping and island outposts near the Tachen Islands today from the Formosa fortress which bristled with growing U.S. military strength.

Decision for a Nationalist pullout from the exposed Tachens 200 miles north of Formosa apparently awaited U.S. Senate approval of President Eisenhower's fight-if-we-must Formosa policy.

Hot War Unlikely

(Peiping radio trumpeted that Eisenhower "was asking Congress for dictatorial powers to start war."

A Nationalist deputy military spokesman today estimated that the Reds had massed 400,000 troops in the two provinces opposite Formosa and President Chiang Kai-shek's string of island outposts.

The Communists also have a string of mainland air bases which have mounted 200 plane strikes against the Nationalists.

In Pearl Harbor, Adm. Felix B. Stump declared the Reds would "get the pants licked off them" if they tried to invade Formosa.

Stump, U.S. Navy commander in the Pacific, told newsmen Asia could erupt in a hot war if the Communists want that but added, "I don't think it will get hot."

Swelling U.S. air and sea strength in this troubled sector made clear that the United States was preparing to resist any Communist move which might threaten Formosa.

The 45,000-ton carrier Midway and the cruiser Pittsburgh unofficially were reported rushing to join the U.S. 7th Fleet in Formosan waters.

The Midway would add a 137-plane punch to the four carriers already with the 7th Fleet which can handle about 400 planes. They are the Yorktown, Kearsarge, Wasp and Essex.

The U.S. 18th Sabrejet Wing was newly settled on Formosa from base in the Philippines and Okinawa. Brig. Gen. Harold Grant, deputy commander of the U.S. 5th Air Force, is in command of the Sabres here.

Nationalist air headquarters claimed their bombers hit a 1,500-ton Communist warship today 35 miles northeast of the Tachens and scored excellent results in waves of strikes again Toumen and Yikiangshan islands near the Tachens.

It said the bombers met heavy antiaircraft fire but all returned.

Korea Veterans Get Bonus Soon

LANSING (AP)—An 80 million dollar state bonus for Korean War veterans made its second step toward actuality today.

The Senate passed a bill to set up machinery for the bonus payment and sent it to the House where prompt action was promised.

Brig. Gen. George C. Moran, adjutant general of Michigan, said his office was shooting for a mid-February start of the bonus operation.

Legislation to allow the Michigan Turnpike Authority to issue promissory notes until it can sell bonds for the construction of a Detroit-Saginaw toll road was placed in order for debate Monday night in the Senate.

The Senate confirmed Gov. Williams' appointments of James C. Allen of Birmingham as state corporations and securities commissioner, Frank Blackford of Lansing to the State Liquor Control Commission; Chester W. Ellison of Lansing to the State Historical Commission; Brig. Gen. Lester J. Maitland and John H. Stark Jr. of Lansing to the Civil Defense Advisor Council, and Mrs. Dorothy McAllister of Grand Rapids to the State Board for Libraries.

Hidden A-Bomb Hoax Revealed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An anonymous phone caller Thursday night set off a chain reaction of rumors regarding "planted" atom bombs in several eastern cities that had police, the FBI and Civil Defense authorities checking fruitlessly well past the "deadline" of midnight.

The caller contacted the FBI in Philadelphia Thursday afternoon, identified himself as a "foreign agent," and said A-bombs would explode at midnight in buildings in Philadelphia, New York and Washington.

Precautionary checks were made but William Peer, aide to New York City Mayor Robert F. Wagner, said the official view was that the caller was a crackpot.

The rumors reached to the Midwest, with a Kentucky CD officer saying his group had been told to stand by.

In Washington, however, the White House said there had been no civil defense alert and that no atomic devices were found.

Atomic Airplane Not Far Away

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Durham (D-NC) predicted today that a practical atom-powered airplane will be developed "within five years." Such a plane, he said, could fly indefinitely without landing.

Durham made the statement in commenting on Gen. Nathan F. Twining's statement Thursday that advances thus far have convinced the Air Force a practical nuclear-powered military plane is possible.

Twining, Air Force chief of staff, told the House Armed Services Committee, "We have hopes this will be a truly intercontinental weapon freeing us from the dependence" on overseas bases and supply lines.

Durham, a member of that committee and top Democrat on the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, said the successful development of the atom-powered submarine Nautilus had spurred progress on the A-plane. The nautilus is now making test runs.

The congressman said in an interview that a major remaining problem for an A-plane is how to control the terrific heat generated by atomic energy, and that others include reducing the weight and size of the craft.

Swims In Lake

Appleton Woman, 60, No. 1 Weight Loser

CHICAGO (AP) — A farm woman who shed 123 pounds of excess fat in one year by dieting was crowned champion weight loser today by TOPS, a national women's reducing organization.

Mrs. Esther Conradt, 60, of Appleton, Wis., cut her weight from 315 pounds to 192. Her dress size narrowed from 56 to 42.

She said she got her biggest thrill when her 5-year-old granddaughter climbed into her lap recently and said:

"Grandma, you've got such a nice big lap. The other one always slided off."

TOPS stands for Taking Off Pounds Scientifically. Mrs. Conradt received the award at the organization's third annual meeting at headquarters of the American Medical Assn.

The group, started six years ago by Mrs. Esther Manz, Milwaukee, has helped some 10,000 women lose unnecessary fat. Members lose weight merely by restricting the number of calories in their diet. The weight is lost under a doctor's supervision.

Anthony Eden Has Plan To End China Fighting

LONDON (AP) — Official British informants said today Britain and the United States have agreed to invite Communist China to a United Nations Security Council meeting for discussion of a cease-fire in the China fighting.

These responsible informats said New Zealand, in agreement with Britain and the United States, will ask the council to meet Monday to consider extending the invitation to the Peiping regime.

The United States and Nationalist China were reported ready to participate in the discussions with the Chinese Reds.

Nehru's Aid Sought

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden is expected to ask India's Prime Minister Nehru to use his influence with the Chinese Reds to get them to accept a Security Council invitation.

Premier Chou En-lai of Red China said Monday the United Nations had no jurisdiction in the Formosa clash.

Eden, meanwhile, was said to be backing a plan proposing a U. N. - sponsored cease-fire in the China Strait, plus Nationalist withdrawal from Chinese coastal islands.

The British Foreign Office refused to comment on these reports and the U. S. Embassy spokesman was not available for comment.

If the plan wins U.S. and Chinese Nationalist approval, informants said, Eden will ask Indian Prime Minister Nehru to seek Red Chinese acceptance of it.

According to the reports, Eden's plan calls for:

1. The U.N. Security Council to ask both Peiping and Chiang Kai-shek's Formosa forces to agree to a cease-fire without prejudice to their legal territorial claims.

2. Withdrawal of Chinese Nationalist troops from all China's coastal islands, including the Tachens, Matsu and Quemoy.

3. A pledge by Red China not to attack Formosa or the neighboring Pescadores pending an eventual peaceful settlement of rival sovereignty claims.

4. Fresh consideration by the Western Powers of Red China's demand for U.N. membership.

Nehru conferred with Red China's charge d'affaires in New Delhi Thursday night, before taking off today for London to attend a Commonwealth prime ministers' conference.

Schooner Feared Lost In Atlantic Gales

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP)—U. S. Navy, Coast Guard and Air Force planes were called out today to search over a wide ocean area for the 60-foot schooner HSH, skippered by Ward Wheelock, prominent Philadelphia advertising company exuctive. The schooner has not been heard from for two weeks

In addition to Wheelock those aboard include his wife, a son, Ian, and three Bermudians.

The HSH left Bermuda Jan. 13 for Antigua, about 1,200 miles to the south. Eighty-mile-an-hour gales had been whipping the Atlantic a short time before.

Court Approves Use Of Bonifas Fund For State Office Building

The petition of the City of Escanaba for authorization to invest more than $300,000 in the Catherine Bonifas Trust Fund in the construction of a public office building in Escanaba was approved in an order issued Thursday by Circuit Judge Glenn W. Jackson.

In his ruling Judge Jackson pointed out that the specific sums of $100,000 for each of three purposes bequeathed to the City of Escanaba by Mrs. Bonifas were insufficient at this time or in the foreseeable future to attain any one of the objectives provided in the will.

Mrs. Bonifas bequeathed $100,000 for a public office building, $100,000 for a combined courthouse and city hall, and $100,000 for public recreation.

Planned As Investment

The city petitioned that the entire trust fund be used for the construction of a public office building, not for the purpose of appropriating such trust funds for the office building but as an investment of trust funds to obtain a higher rate of return than is now being obtained in government bonds. The court emphasized that it is proposed to amortize the investment and to return the earnings to the City of Escanaba until such time when it may become feasible to further carry out the other requests mentioned in the will of Mrs. Bonifas.

The court's order contains the following provisions:

1. That the bequest in the will of Catherine Bonifas be construed as a trust, vesting the trust funds in the corporate City of Escanaba as trustee.

2. That petitioner is authorized to act as such trustee of the bequest made.

3. That the petitioned be authorized to invest the sums so bequeathed in the construction of a public office building as an investment of the trust fund.

City To Retain Title

4. That the title to any and all real estate or other investments shall be taken and retained in the City of Escanaba as trustee until the same may be sold or otherwise conveyed.

5. That before the petitioner shall atttempt to sell or dispose of such proposed real estate to be acquired from such investment the petitioner obtain leave of the court, so that proper safeguards may be provided to protect the trust character of the property.

6. That petitioner shall keep proper books of account separate and apart from the general municipal activities.

7. That petitioner shall file with the court an annual report of its transactions, listing disbursements and expenses.

8. That the proceeds from the sale of any bonds and all other receipts be deposited in a responsible bank in the name of the petitioner as trustee of the Catherine Bonifas Trust, and that funds shall not be commingled with the general corporate funds of the petitioner.

9. That petitioner accumulate the net annual income from year to year for the purpose of allocating the devotion of such funds for the construction of a combined city hall and court house and for the purpose of construeting recreational facilities for the use by the general public.

10. That any building to be constructed shall be insured on responsible insurers for the maximum amounts permissable against damage or loss by fire or lightning and public liability.

Planning Meeting

Escanaba City Council will meet at 5 p. m. Monday in City Hall in special session to accept final plans for the proposed state office building. Also to be considered is the setting of a date to receive construction bids.

Robert S. Meyer To Address Powers Band Boosters

Robert S. Meyer, director of instrumental music in the Escanaba public schools, will speak at Powers-Spalding school Thursday, Feb. 3 at 8 p. m. CST to a number of parents interested in forming a Band Booster organization.

Armed with a background of success in forming and working with this type of parent group, Mr. Meyer will outline some of the many ways that such an organization can help the instrumental program. Then he will answer questions brought up by members of the audience.

A model constitution approved by Supt. Cyril L. Mantei, and similar to many in use in other localities will be presented for approval by John Talbot, Powers-Spalding band director, and steps will be taken for the election of officers.

Refreshments will be served by the band members.

German Youth, Once Soviet Prisoner, Will Speak Here

Peter Kalinke, a German youth now studying in this country, who for four years was a prisoner of the Russians, will speak in Escanaba at 3:30 p. m. Sunday in the Presbyterian Church.

His appearance Sunday afternoon is sponsored by the Delta County Ministerial Association and the public is invited to attend. There will be no admission charge but a free will offering will be taken to help defray expenses.

Born in Breslau, Silesia, Germany, in 1927, Kalinke attended German schools. In 1941 at the age of 14 he became an air force helper in Berlin; in 1943 he was in the labor service; and in 1944 he enlisted in the German army as a war correspondent.

At the end of the war in 1945 he was captured in Prague and was in a prison camp in Soviet Russia from 1945-48, and from 1948-49 in Stalingrad. He was released in January, 1950.

Returning to Germany following his release he attended the University of Frankfurt, and later that summer the International Work Camp in Yugoslavia and the Catholic University in Angers and the Alliance Francaise in Paris. Later he became research assistant in the Institute for Social Research in Damstadt, and in 1952 worked with the State Department on special research in Soviet prison camps.

PETER KALINKE

In July, 1953, he came to the United States as a Fulbright Scholar, and is now studying at the University of Michigan for his Master's Degree in sociology. Last year he was speaker at the Michigan Pastor's Conference at Ann Arbor and was heard there by the Rev. Joseph S. Dickson, the Rev. James Bell and the Rev. Gustav Lund who were so favorably impressed that they successfully sought to have him speak in Escanaba.

On Monday Mr. Kalinke will address students at Escanaba Senior High School, and Monday noon will talk to members of the Escanaba Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs in joint meeting at the House of Ludington.

While in the Upper Peninsula he will fill speaking engagements at Rapid River, Sault Ste. Marie, Ishpeming, Marquette and Houghton.

Drop Revealed In Employment

Non-farm employment in Delta and Schoolcraft Counties showed a net drop of 100 workers in the past 30 days and is approximately 200 below January 1954, the local office of the Michigan Employment Security Commission has reported.

Whitney Dixon, manager, reported that decreases in employment were minor and occurred in transportation, retail trade, service and government employment. Decreases were partly offset by increased employment in lumber and wood product industries and in commercial fishing. Employment in the area is expected to further decline in the next 30 days.

Sizeable increases in employment are expected during the second quarter, reaching peak employment in the third quarter.

Unemployment in the area is 1850, compared with 1700 a month ago and 2,000 a year ago. Total non-farm employment is 11,030.

Isadore Greiner Dies In Hospital

Isadore Greiner, 75, Main Hotel, died at 7:30 a. m. today at St. Francis Hospital. He was admitted yesterday suffering from a serious heart condition.

Mr. Greiner came to Escanaba from Sheboygan, Wis., two years ago. He has no known relatives.

The body was taken to the Allo Funeral Home. Arrangements for the services are incomplete.

Bark River

BARK RIVER — Jill Sundquist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Iven Sundquist, submitted to an appendectomy at St. Francis Hospital late Monday afternoon. She is getting along nicely.

Mrs. A. E. Anderson returned Wednesday morning from Detroit where she attended a board meeting of Methodist Church Women.

Miss Hilma Larson of Escanaba is spending a few days as a guest of Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Erickson.

Mrs. Ernest Krause is visiting her daughter and family, the Clem Linders of Nadeau and also getting acquainted with her new granddaughter Maurine Edna. Mrs. Linder is the former Maurine Krause.

Mrs. Harold McNaughton and Mrs. Vernon Dahl visited with Mr. McNaughton, who is a patient at the Veterans Hospital at Iron Mountain, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Johnson and LeRoy motored to Ontonagon and were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Algot Johnson.

Mrs. Martin Kwarchiany left Wednesday morning for Sheboygan, Wis., for a visit with her husband who is employed there.

Rev. Frank and Mrs. Peterson left Wednesday morning for Milwaukee and Chicago. Mr. Peterson will attend the Lutheran Council of Churches meetings at Milwaukee. Mrs. Peterson went on the Chicago to visit with their daughter, Marilyn, who is a nurse at the Veterans Research Center.

A total of $126.02 was collected from the various township schools of Bark River-Harris area from the sale of Christmas seals.

The Bark River Home Economic Group met Wednesday evening at the Junior High School. Mrs. Arthur Fournier presided at the business meeting. Mrs. E. J. Bergman and Mrs. William Lavigne, leaders, presented the lesson "Your Clothes and You." A lunch was served during a social hour. Mrs. August Fudala, Mrs. Harold Bruce and Mrs. Norman Niquette were the hostesses.

State Parks Will Get Face-Lifting

LANSING (AP)—Michigan's much used and much abused state parks are in for a face lifting—the Legislature willing.

Gov. Williams' budget message of a week ago included a whopping $1,666,000 for expanding and improving the state park system, which is beginning to show signs of wear.

Naturally, no one really expects the Legislature to shell out that amount. But conservation officials are hoping the trunk of their budget request is permitted to stand, even if some of the branches go.

Where will all the money be spent?

Mostly in southeastern Michigan, where the big crowds from Detroit put a heavy strain on the parks and advancing civilization threatens to prevent future expansion.

"If we don't embark on a big land-acquisition program in that area, we'll soon be closed in and won't be able to expand in the future," says Arthur C. Elmer, chief of the Parks and Recreation Division.

Another critical area of the state, is the Lake Michigan shore.

"Our Lake Michigan beaches are getting so crowded I don't know where we'll put all the people," Elmer said.

Just the other day, he said, a parks officer at Warren Dunes counted 270 cars on a Sunday afternoon.

That's in the middle of the winter; it gives a rough idea of the number of people on public beaches during the summer.

Called Land-Grab

To ease that situation, the department has placed acquisition of 170 acres at Saugatuck near the top of its priority list. The bill for this will be about $26,000.

Some legislators are taking a dim view of the governor's request for state park improvement.

Rep. Kenneth O. Trucks (R-Baldwin) termed the program a "landgrab," and suggested taking the Parks Division away from the department and combining it with the Tourist Council.

The Legislature, though, will probably be wary about decimating the parks budget.

After all, the parks are pretty popular with the people back home. So popular that 15,232,985 persons stopped in at the parks during 1954.

For attendance, that beats the New York Yankees, Detroit Lions and Bronx Zoo combined.

Cold Weather Will Continue In State

Cold weather will continue in Michigan at least for the next five days, with temperatures averaging 10 to 15 degrees below normal, according to a five-day outlook reported today by the U. S. Weather Bureau office at Escanaba. There will be a warming trend starting about the middle of next week.

Meanwhile in the Northern Michigan region temperatures will be 10 to 15 degrees below the season normals, which range from 8 to 24 degrees above zero.

There will be snow overspreading much of Wisconsin by late Saturday afternoon or evening, but for the Upper Peninsula there will be only a little occasional snow for the next five days.

The forecast for tomorrow is cold and partly cloudy, with temperatures ranging from a low of about 10 below tonight to a high of 10 above on Saturday. Winds will be west to southwest on Saturday.

Pallet Plant At Hermansville Is Back In Operation

HERMANSVILLE—The Wm. S. Ahern Co., pallet manufacturers, resumed operations at their Hermansville plant Tuesday afternoon after a layoff since January 1. Plant manager Vern Secrist recalled six former employees back to work and others will be called back as work progresses.

The Ahern Company leases space in the former flooring factory of the Wisconsin Land and Lumber company, which abandoned full-scale lumber operations several years ago. In its original announcement in November, Ahern indicated it would shut down at Hermansville and move its machinery and lumber stocks away.

However, recently Ahern was in Hermansville and indicated to officials of the Wisconsin Land and Lumber Company that there would be some temporary suspension of operations and the company did expect to resume and continue operations at Hermansville.

The Wisconsin Land and Lumber Company did some kiln drying of lumber for Ahern as well as supplying other materials and the dual operation was practicable because waste materials from the Ahern pallet operation were used to fuel the WL&L dry kilns. With the temporary suspension by Ahern, plus the fact that the bottom has fallen out of the custom dry kilning market, Wisconsin Land and Lumber Company was compelled to shut down the boilers and the kilns.

Unless there is a sharp upturn in the lumber market, which doesn't appear likely at present, dry kiln operations are not expected to be resumed before April 1. Ahern would require a relatively small amount of lumber kiln dried, but in any event its resumption of operations would have some bearing on resumption of other activities at Hermansville prior to spring.

Meanwhile no announcement has been made by Sven Anderson, former plant manager for the Ahern Company as to his future plans. It was reported some time ago that Anderson was planning a business operation of his own in Hermansville. Anderson, very active in community affairs, lives in the community, in a new home that he just recently completed.

Presidential Action On Formosa Is Dire Warning To Red China

PRESIDENT Eisenhower is proposing a calculated risk of war in asking Congress for authority for American military forces to fight in defense of Formosa, but it is as much a proposal for peace.

The American position regarding Formosa is not a new one. Our government has consistently warned Communist China that we will protect Formosa at any cost and that an invasion of Formosa by the Reds will be met with opposition from the American Seventh Fleet.

In requesting Congress for authority to act when the situation requires it, President Eisenhower is serving a dual purpose. First, he is leaving no room for doubt of the American intentions. If President Truman had acted similarly before the North Koreans moved against South Korea, it is doubtful that the Korean war would ever have materialized. The Reds gambled then that the United States would not fight in Korea.

Secondly, President Eisenhower is fulfilling to the letter the constitutional requirement that only Congress can declare war.

Our risk of war has not increased because of the President's action. On the contrary, the risk of war probably has lessened. We were committed to protect Formosa, not simply because of Chiang Kai-Shek but primarily because we recognize that Formosa is a strategic island in our protection of the Philippines and American installations on Okinawa and Japan.

The Chinese Reds have been talking about invading Formosa for a long time. Some of their actions in recent months have indicated that the Reds might gamble again on the possibility that this country would not intervene. They might still do that, of course, and plunge the world into another war—but it is less likely now that the American position is beyond doubt.

It is absolutely essential that the Communists understand the intentions of this country. They must be aware that we do not intend to sit idly by while the Communists spread their tentacles ever wider and wider.

The decision for war rests with Red China. Our position is plainly evident. We will not make war and will fight only in defense of Formosa and in defense of whatever strategic islands are regarded as necessary for the protection of Formosa.

Words, Wit & Wisdom

By William Morris

"What," asks a San Diego reader, "is a high dudgeon—and how does it differ from a low dudgeon?"

Well, sir, you have posed a neat problem here, since dudgeon, according to most authorities, has two distinct meanings. The less common is "a kind of wood used for dagger hilts and, hence, the handle of a dagger." The second and only frequently heard use of the word today is in the phrase "in high dudgeon, "meaning "in a state of irate indignation." High is here used in the sense of "great" or "intense." And, since there is little likelihood that anyone ever was just a little bit irate or a tiny bit indignant, there simply is no such phrase as "in a low dudgeon," as my correspondent suggests.

Though most linguists contend that there is no direct connection between the dudgeon of the dagger hilt and the dudgeon of deep resentment, it seems to me that they are blinding themselves to a simple fact of medieval life—the period when this phrase first gained wide currency. What would be more likely than that a man of noble birth, feeling indignant over an insult to his name or reputation, would reach for his dagger as the first gesture of revenging the damage? How probable indeed that the dagger—instrument of vengeance—became by extension the term used to describe the high degree of wrath which would lead to its use!

So dudgeon, in today's meaning of wrath or resentment, almost surely came from the medieval name of the instrument commonly used to avenge the cause of wrath.

"Why," asks another reader, "are small towns called 'jerk-water towns'?"

In the days when most trains were powered by steam, it was necessary for them to stop at regular intervals to refill the water chambers of the locomotives. Since the water requirements of the engines did not always coincide with the regularly scheduled passenger stops, they often paused briefly in small way stations where the fireman would jerk a cord attached to an enormous spigot hanging from the water tower and fill the engine's boiler with water. Hence, "jerkwater" to describe a hamlet with no other reason—from the railroaders' viewpoint—for existence.

Much To Become Of Atomic Radiation

NOT long ago scientists discussing the prospct of wide human damage as result of atomic radiation in the wake of A and H bomb "fallouts" said too little was known about how the explosions might affect the heredity of generations to come.

Now a California geneticist, studying the germ cells which transmit physical characteristics from a human to its offspring, warns that even at present rates of nuclear radiation we may be getting nearly a hundred harmful changes a year in those vital cells. The figure for the world is about 1800.

These totals estimate roughly the damage we may be doing right now to the new generations. They are infinitesimally small when set against our and the world's present population. But they do not make one feel easier about the future.

For this geneticist, Dr. Sturtevant of California Institute of Technology, says that if we step up atomic radiation to the maximum amount possible without inflicting damage on the bodies of living persons, then about 330,000 babies born in this country each year would have harmful changes in their germ cells.

Anybody feel like saying: "Let's drop the bomb?" You shouldn't.

High heels are stylish for men in France. We'd hate to be in their shoes.

To show you how they do things at Glenn McCarthy's Shamrock Hotel in Houston, Texas, where nobody with less than fifteen million dollars dares to admit he's in the oil business, the proprietor was in the room of a famous radio crooner when he felt the urge to hear a bit of melody.

"But there's no piano in the room," the singer pointed out. McCarthy pooh-poohed, "We'll soon fix that." He picked up the phone, asked for room service, and demanded, "Send up some extra ice, a grand piano, and a 6-piece orchestra—pronto!" And by golly, they did!

Regulated Diet Will Help Victim of Spastic Colon

By EDWIN P. JORDAN M D. — Written for NEA Service

Readers repeatedly ask questions about the condition known as spastic colon. What causes it, they ask, and what can be done about it? Does it eventually lead to cancer? Certainly these questions deserve an answer—though a good one cannot be given to all of them—since this is one of the most common ailments known to modern man.

The colon is the lower part of the intestinal tube. In many people it gets into a state of chronic irritation and when it does it is called spastic colon or irritable bowel. Vague abdominal distress, growling sounds, and disturbances in waste elimination are common signs. Many things enter into the development of spastic colon including the too frequent use of laxatives, poor eating habits, and emotional stress and strain.

PERHAPS NEVER before in human history have so many people labored under the delusion that in order to keep themselves healthy they should "cleanse" their insides regularly with a laxative of one sort or another.

Actually, nature is well equipped to do this job, and does it a lot better most of the time than can be done artificially Certainly the long continued use of cathartics is generally recognized in medical circles as one of the most important causes of bowel irritation or spastic colon.

A LOT OF PEOPLE eat irregularly, too, and choose foods which do not give enough bulk or which are themselves too laxative in nature. This can also contribute to the development of spastic colon. The pressure of modern life, particularly on a "highly strung" temperament has a lot to do with bowel trouble. Anyone who has a spastic colon learns that the condition gets worse under nervous tension and in all probability this can even bring it on.

Too many victims of spastic colon think they are constipated because they may go for a day or two without emptying the bowels. Often this is because they have had a little diarrhea and there is simply nothing there. This causes concern, a laxative is taken, and the poor colon is irritated again.

ON THE ENCOURAGING side it can be said that spastic colon does not cause cancer nor will it of itself lead to anything else that threatens life. It responds reasonably well to treatment with diet and certain medicines, but it is hard to get rid of entirely. Many who have this trouble have experienced a period of great relief suddenly followed by a recurrence after a single meal off the diet or some emotion upset.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — For the first time since December 1941, a President of the United States has formally requested authority from Congress to use the armed forces of the United States in a specific situation involving already existent hostilities.

But the step is intended, nevertheless, more to prevent a war and indeed to stop the present fighting, than to enlarge the scope of military action.

So it may truly be said that the President has acted to prevent a war rather than to bring one on. And, if there is a calming down of the situation in the Far East in a few days, the world may witness a dramatic vindication of the philosophy expressed so often by statesmen of courage that the best way to deter an aggressor government is to let it know clearly and explicitly in advance that you will resist.

The Congress is ready to support the joint resolution overwhelmingly. This in itself is a demonstration not only of national unity but firmness in a crisis. The Republicans naturally follow their party leader, while the Democrats are saying that the chief executive already has ample power but they are not unwilling to express their support by voting for the resolution so that world opinion may be impressed. It presents a combination of legal and psychological factors.

IMPORTANT AS PRECEDENT

Mr. Eisenhower might have spoken in person to Congress instead of transmitting his written request by messenger to both houses, but it was stated in his behalf that he didn't want to over-dramatize the occasion and give the impression that this was like other instances in history when a request for war powers was being made. Still it would have been better if the President had addressed Congress, especially since later in the same day he posed before the newsreels and television cameras and read half the text of the message anyway.

The wording of the document is of transcendent importance as a precedent. Careful examination of its phrases will reveal that providing "military and economic support to the Chinese Nationalist government" is only one of several reasons for the step. Primarily the objective is to protect the interests of the United States.

The Republic of China, with its capital on Formosa, has invited American aid and when any government requests aid from another, it is in accord with international law to come to its support. The resolution, however, states that the move is designed to resist an armed attack, which, "if continued, would gravely endanger the peace and security of the west Pacific area." It goes on to say that "the secure possession by friendly governments of the western Pacific island chain, of which Formosa is a part, is essential to the vital interests of the United States and all friendly nations in or bordering upon the Pacific ocean."

This makes clear the case for a specific defense of the United States by protecting its outlying areas. For, in an age of airpower, it is vitally important that bases thousands of miles away from one's own continent shall be in friendly hands lest an attack by air be launched from those bases.

President Truman recognized this principle when he ordered the U. S. Seventh Fleet to protect Formosa in June 1950 when American forces joined with other nations in a United Nations command to resist aggression in North Korea. Many observers feel that Mr. Truman should have gone to Congress after that act of intervention to secure ratification of what he had done.

A PROPER ACTION

Already using that precedent as a guide, many persons are saying now that President Eisenhower didn't need to go to Congress to get authority to protect Formosa. The truth is that in an emergency a President can act on his own, but he is morally bound to go to Congress for confirmation if the hostilities continue or are enlarged as they were in Korea.

Mr. Eisenhower promised the American people in his 1952 campaign that he would consult Congress before taking any steps that might lead to war. He is making good that promise. The people's representatives have a right and duty to join with him, especially since the constitution gives Congress alone the power to declare war. Certainly, if there's time, it's always better to go to Congress, and there is no reason why a President in a developing crisis—these incidents rarely happen without some warning—cannot ask Congress in advance for contingent authority. That's what Mr. Eisenhower has done now and it may prove a salutary device in preventing a local skirmish from turning into a big war.

Could Be Getting in Over His Head

Builder Says High Rents Force Middle Class To Leave Cities

NEW YORK— (NEA)— Paul Tishman is not a rampaging reformer, out to change the world in 20 days, but a hardheaded building contractor.

Yet Tishman avails himself of every chance to lay down a few hard facts to bankers and insurance men about what's going to happen to them if the middle class continues its exodus from the big cities.

Big cities, with state and federal aid, are building houses in the cores of gloomy slums for lower income brackets. Private contractors, with an eye on the main chance, are building luxury apartments on the edges of real estate-protecting parks and rivers.

The middle bracket in the $4,000-$9000 income group, with its burgeoning families, are left out of the picture. So they go out to the suburbs that unfold like newspapers on commuter trains. They can ill afford them, but with GI mortgages and a loan, they move. About $100 a month is what they can manage, and there's no place else to go.

* * *

That's the picture Tichman lays out. His banker listeners know it—they've watched the accounts close and move to the suburbs, where they, by New York state law, can't go.

It's not that Tishman couldn't do business without the middle class. His simply lettered sign decorates some of New York's largest apartments, including the silk-stocking 60 Sutton Place South ("every room with a river view.") and the subsized General Grant Houses which are erasing a squalid block in the hollow of 125th Street.

The point, according to Tishman, is that eventually no one could afford it. A two-class city would be a reality.

"Not only is city revenue affected, but also business, especially in the retail trades and service industries, suffers," he points out.

* * *

And when this "solid group of citizens' moves, he adds, it takes with it municipal revenue, votes, civic action and its pay checks.

Tishman feels that a man, even a squeezed-out middle income man, ought to have his choice of living in the city if he wants to.

"But the best a private builder could do in Manhattan for fireproof construction without tax exemption and low land subsidization would be to build apartments to rent for about $45 a room a month—with no builders interested," Tishman says.

His suggestion: the formation of a Savings Banks Housing Foundation. With the aid of a law which permits the condemnation, purchase and resale by auction of obsolete property in the city, he feels such a foundation could build 3000 middle income housing units a year for 10 years. They would rent for an average of $27.50 per month per room, with a rent right down the black column of this bracket's budget and a return to the banks of five to six per cent.

"If private enterprise does not take up the slack," Tishman warns, "government housing will enter this category, since the need is real and cannot be ignored politically. Public housing for both low and middle income groups to satisfy the increasing pressures could develop on a scale never before envisioned.

"We will never have to worry about communism or fascism, or any other 'ism' for that matter, with a reasonable program of public housing for the low income group—and a decently housed middle income citizenry."

In private, Tishman's face softens when he gets to this point of his pitch.

"I would love to build them," he says.

PLENTY OF LOW-INCOME HOUSING, like this Edenwald project in New York, one of the largest in the U. S., is being built in American cities these days. There's also lots of new high-rent housing—but nobody's building for the middle class.

PAUL TISHMAN: The middle income man deserves a choice.

Once-Rioting Jackson Convicts Decide To Heed Dale Carnegie

JACKSON, Mich.—(NEA)—Forty local residents have just completed the famous Dale Carnegie Leadership Course—which won't seem very unusual until you understand that each one of them is a convict at Southern Michigan Prison.

The course began in September, and as soon as the warden announced it, several hundred inmates said they would like to enroll. The job of weeding them out was based on two requirements: enough time to finish the course (almost every convict naturally qualified), and enough basic education to absorb the various lessons.

Each Sunday for 16 weeks, the 40 men finally picked were sent to a four-hour class. Classes were held on Sunday since prison officials felt that a man who would go on a Sunday was showing genuine interest, and not merely trying to goldbrick.

Instructors came from beyond the walls—businessmen and college professors who gave their services free.

* * *

Each Sunday, the students would rise in turn, speak on a subject they chose themselves and then answer any questions. The inmate who managed best what the class called "facing the music" got a fountain pen or a pencil as a weekly achievement prize.

At the start, the convicts were awkward. Except perhaps for the few who had once growled, "This is a stickup!" public speaking was new—and for some as tough as the Death House.

But soon they were brimming with confidence. And all who completed the course are classed today as "improved individuals."

They remember fondly the many speeches. Such as those of an eloquent Irish con who would strum each week on their heartstrings. Or the peppy talks of another man who kept repeating the favorite words of the late Warden Lewis Lawes: "Never give up on a man until he fails at the thing he loves to do."

As a rehabilitation adjunct, the course has a good potential—and it isn't costing the state a penny. The bill is footed entirely by the volunteer group of teachers.

Prison official William Johnson, who spoke at the graduation, summed up results in a sentence: "This is a far cry—certainly a more salutary sound—from what we were hearing here a few months back."

A few months back, convicts at Jackson Prison touched off a headlined riot that almost razed the big prison and cost the taxpayers $1,500,000.

Inmates are wondering now if the program can't be expanded to bring in Carnegie's other famed course: "How to Win Friends and Influence people."

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—For the first time, Republican analysts are ready to concede that the influence of the union labor vote and the activities of organized labor's political workers are an important factor in U. S. election results.

It is conceded that the so-called labor vote was influential in electing many candidates who this month took office as state legislators, governors and members of the new Congress.

In no case can it be said that all-out, pro-labor members control any state legislature or any state's delegation to Congress. But there are freely expressed Republican opinions that if present trends continue, union labor control of the Democratic Party or even a U. S. Labor Party are possible. For the Republicans, this poses a problem of how to win more union labor support.

Analyses of last November's elections, looking primarily at the union labor vote influence, are still not yet completed. But the highlights are so readily discernible that they show a pattern.

* * *

U. S. SENATE RACES IN WHICH the labor vote held at least the balance of power, gave victory to the following Democrats: Paul H. Douglas of Illinois, Patrick V. McNamara of Michigan, Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, James E. Murray of Montana and Richard L. Neuberger of Oregon.

American Federation of Labor's League for Political Education has recently revised upward the number of friendly senators and representatives elected in 1952. It now lists 182 instead of 176 pro-labor congressmen and 41 instead of 40 pro-labor senators.

AFL-LLPE points out that 60 per cent of the Senate candidates and 56 per cent of the House candidates it endorsed were elected. Putting it another way, 18 out of 30 endorsed Senate candidates won, and 152 out of 282 endorsed House candidates won.

This is seen as considerable advance from the 80th Congress when organized labor could claim only 83 friends in the House and 25 in the Senate.

* * *

IN GOVERNORSHIP RACES, the union labor vote is given credit—or blame—for the election of such candidates as Averell Harriman in New York, Abraham A. Ribicoff in Connecticut, G. Mennen Williams in Michigan and George M. Leader in Pennsylvania.

In all, the Democrats took 27 governorships—a gain of seven—but not all these can be attributed to a labor vote.

Similarly, in state legislature races, one preliminary count indicates that the Democrats took a total of 545 seats away from Republicans, and lost only six. Just what the labor vote influence was in these results is still under study.

The general trend, however, is considered significant. While only 16 million out of the 64 million workers in the U. S. civilian labor force belong to organized unions, this minority has learned gradually how to throw its political weight around most effectively in national, state and local elections.

* * *

THE CONGRESS OF Industrial Organizations Political Action Committee was a whipping boy for Republican campaign orators in the Franklin D. Roosevelt era. But CIO-PAC was not taken seriously as a political force nor was it considered too effective.

When President Eisenhower was elected in 1952, it was interpreted as proof that there was no labor vote. Today CIO-PAC spokesmen say it was the wives of many union members who switched votes and helped elect Eisenhower.

In 1954 elections, it is believed most of the union labor vote went Democratic again. An important factor was unemployment. Of the 21 House seats which Democrats took away from Republicans, 18 were in labor-surplus areas.

AFL-LLPE and CIO-PAC each raised more than $1 million in campaign funds this year. Half was used in national and half in local elections. This would indicate only about two million union labor members—at $1 apiece—supporting political activity.

The Limping Goose

by Frank Gruber

COPYRIGHT 1954 BY FRANK GRUBER. DISTRIBUTED BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: The only clue, apparently, in the murder of Jess Carmichael III is a goose bank given to Johnny Fletcher and Sam Cragg by Alice Cummings, who owed money on a cheap fur coat. Alice was Carmichael's girl friend and the murder took place in her apartment. Johnny and Sam, who were broke and reduced to skip-tracing to earn money, found the bank full of old coins. Next Johnney and Sam visit Jess Carmichael Sr., wealthy chain-grocery owner and father of the murder victim.

* * *

XI

Carmichael shook his head and his eyes went to the young man by the book-shelves. "James, who would perpetrate a joke at a time like this?"

"I couldn't say, Uncle," replied the young man. "It's most certainly in bad taste."

He came forward. "I say, old boy, don't you know that Mr. Carmichael's son—my cousin, Jess—was, ah . . ."

"Of course I know it. That's why I'm here."

Johnny looked past Carmichael and saw a newspaper on a desk. He crossed to the desk and picked up the newspaper. "My name's in here," he said, "Ah yes, here . . ." He read, " . . . The two men, John Fletcher and Sam Cragg, were described by Miss Cummings—"

"Cummings!" cried Jess Carmichael. "Don't mention that woman's name in this house." He stabbed a well-manicured forefinger at Johnny. "You're the man the police suspect of killing my son."

"No," said Johnny, "Lieutenant Madigan's already cleared me."

"Who's Lieutenant Madigan?"

"Homicide, in charge of the investigation. A very good man. I've helped him now and then."

"Oh, say, now," expostulated the young man. "You're spreading it on a bit thick, aren't you?"

Johnny regarded him sharply. "I don't believe I got your name."

"I'm James Sutton. I'm Mr. Carmichael's nephew."

"A prime suspect, too," declared Johnny. "The nephew's always the chief suspect."

"I think," said Jess Carmichael, "I've had about all of this I can take. Mr. Fletcher, I've had a difficult day and tomorrow morning I must talk to the police—"

"Mr. Carmichael, I'll put it to you bluntly," Johnny said. "Do you want to, ah, apprehend the murderer of your son?"

"Of course I do," snapped Carmichael, a glint coming into his eyes, "and he will be apprehended. If it takes every dollar—"

"It won't," Johnny said. "It won't cost you much at all. For a modest fee, I'll run him down."

"The police are quite capable of doing that," Carmichael said coldly. "And now I must bid you good evening."

"Very well, sir, but if you should change your mind, I'd like to give you my address . . ."

"That won't be necessary."

Johnny hesitated. He looked at Sam Cragg, who was regarding him anxiously.

"Very well, Mr. Carmichael."

"I'll go with you," James Sutton offered. "Good night, Uncle Jess."

As they stepped out a convertible squealed to a stop beside the limousine that had brought Johnny and Sam out to Manhasset.

A girl sprang out and came running toward the door. "Jim," she cried "how is he?"

"Taking it pretty badly, Hertha," Sutton replied.

"I would have come sooner, but then you know . . ." She stopped and looked sharply at Johnny and Sam.

"Fletcher's my name," Johnny offered. "This is my friend, Sam Cragg."

The girl looked at Johnny, puzzled. "I don't believe I ever met you."

"That's my loss," Johnny said "I'd be glad to call on you tomorrow.'

"Go in and talk to the old man," Sutton said quickly. "He needs someone to cheer him up." He took Johnny's elbow. "D'you mind giving me a lift into town, old boy?"

"All right," Johnny said, "as long as you're twisting my arm. I'm going to the Barbizon-Waldorf unless I can drop you somewhere along the way."

"The hotel's fine," Sutton said easily.

The car started down the winding driveway, Johnny leaned back. "Hertha," he said musingly. "Fancy name. Wouldn't go well with Smith, though."

"You're fishing again," Sutton accused. "All right, I'll bite; her last name's Colston. Young Jess's fiancee."

"I though a little lady named Alice Cummings—"

"Miss Cummings," Sutton said firmly, "was not his fiancee."

"She hooked him for a mink coat," said Sam.

Sutton shrugged. "What's a mink coat?"

* * *

"Miss Cummings bought a $69 special about four years ago," Johnny explained. "The bill was so small it slipped her mind."

"Well," said James Sutton, "that's interesting. But how do you know all this about Miss Cummings?"

"That," said Johnny, "is how we got into this. We skip-traced her and collected the dough."

"I'm interested in skip tracers," Sutton said. "Just how did you do it?"

"There are tricks to all trades," Johnny gave Sutton a quick sideward glance. "I imagine the grocery business has its tricks, too."

"Tut, tut, no more fishing."

Thief Convicted By Lie Detector

ADRIAN (AP) — With what apparently was the first lie detector test ever to reach a Michigan jury before it, a Lenawee Circuit Court jury Wednesday night convicted Roger Housler of larceny from an automobile.

The jury took four hours to convict Housler, 32-year-old Seneca electrician who volunteered in court to take a lie detector test if his accuser, Walter Hopkins Sr., of Adrian, would.

Both underwent tests at state police headquarters in East Lansing Friday, and Lt. W. M. Peterman, who conducted the tests, testified the detector indicated Housler was not telling the truth and that Hopkins was.

Peterman said that so far as he knew it was the first time that evidence of a lie detector test ever had been admitted in a Michigan court. Such evidence has been barred ordinarily because it has not been proved that the detector always is 100 per cent correct in its indications.

Housler was accused of stealing $600 worth of electrical tools and supplies from Hopkins' car Jan. 1, 1954. After his conviction he was remanded to jail to await sentence.

Contract Bridge

THE KILLING LEAD

On the surface, West's opening lead selection in the following hand may look like an inspired guess, but precisely such leads are often made by experts under similar circumstances.

South dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

	♠ K 8 7 3 2 ♥ 10 9 6 5 ♦ 4 2 ♣ J 3
♠ Q J 9 4 ♥ A 7 3 ♦ Q J 9 8 ♣ 9 6	N W E S	♠ 10 6 ♥ 4 2 ♦ K 10 6 5 3 ♣ K Q 10 7
	♠ A 5 ♥ K Q J 8 ♦ A 7 ♣ A 8 5 4 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	Pass	Pass

South's two-heart rebid was a "reverse"—i.e., he had started with a lower-ranking suit and was now quite possibly forcing a choice at the three-level, so North acted properly in raising to three hearts even though his hand was not impressive. It might be noted that the four-heart contract would have been ironclad against most defenses.

It is fair to say that the average West would lead the queen of diamonds—in fact, no great criticism could be levelled against that lead. Observe, however, that South would then have clear sailing. He would simply give up a club, and whether or not the defenders countered with two rounds of trumps, South could ruff out his club suit, control all the other suits, and end up with a fulfilled contract.

The actual West, however, did not lead the diamond—he opened a low trump, and that was very unfortunate for the declarer. When the latter attempted to ruff out clubs, leading the ace and a low card in the suit, East won and returned the trump he still had. This let West remove all but one trump from dummy and the closed hand, and gave declarer an insoluble problem.

Notice that a trump lead in itself was not enough—West had to start out with a low trump. The ace and another trump would not have embarrassed South. It was the fact that West left his partner with a card of communication in the trump suit itself that permitted knocking out enough trumps to defeat the contract.

Air Force Backs Base At Cadillac

WASHINGTON (AP)—Air Force officials say they will ask the House Appropriations Committee to release 8½ million dollars for construction of a jet air base near Cadillac, Mich.

Rep. Cannon (D-Mo), chairman of the committee, earlier this month ordered the money held up after he learned the sum was granted by the last Congress to build the base near Homestead in Benzie County.

The House Armed Services Committee subsequently rejected the Benzie site. Air Force Secretary Talbott then picked Cadillac— in Wexford County — over the third site under consideration—Kalaska near Traverse City.

A letter written by Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) of the Armed Services Committee strengthened Air Force support of the Cadillac site. Vinson wrote Rep. Thompson (R-Mich) that his committee would not hear any arguments against Cadillac unless they relate to national defense.

The Homestead and Cadillac sites are in Miss Thompson's district. The Kalkaska site is in Knox's district.

A NEW KIND OF AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE AT SURPRISINGLY LOW COST . . .

MOTORIST'S Personal PROTECTION PLAN

APPLIES IN ANY AUTO ACCIDENT IN THE U.S. OR CANADA NO MATTER WHO IS AT FAULT OR WHETHER THE OTHER DRIVER IS INSURED!

The Travelers, the first company to write Automobile Liability insurance, is proud to be the first to offer this new protection as an addition to its Automobile Liability policy.

There are two important features in The Motorist's Personal Protection Plan:

Total Disability coverage

Death Indemnity coverage

Here's why the Plan is needed:

1. Personal insurance such as this Plan affords is the only way the insured can protect himself when no one else is at fault.

Every year thousands of people are killed and injured in automobile accidents in which the car runs off the roadway, overturns, collides with a fixed object or is in some other accident not involving collision with another car. In almost all such accidents, the driver is the only one at fault.

2. Personal insurance such as this Plan affords is also a means by which the insured can protect himself when someone else is at fault and the other person is not adequately insured or is uninsured

Details of benefits and exceptions and information on how you may qualify for the Plan are contained in our pamphlet, "The Motorist's Personal Protection Plan." Ask us for a copy.

Silver Fox Trapped In U. P.

Matt Lindfors, Ishpeming, inspects pelt of silver fox he caught in trap he had set for coyote in Richmond Township, Marquette County. Inasmuch as this species is not native to the Upper Peninsula, it is believed likely that the fox was one which had escaped from captivity. Lindfors said the pelt is worth about $50, although silver fox formerly brought several times that amount. —(Mining Journal Photo.)

Eldred Acting Supervisor Of Game In U. P.

ESCANABA — Howard Eldred, Escanaba, has been named acting regional game supervisor for the Conservation Department pending appointment of a permanent supervisor on the basis of a Civil Service promotional examination.

The vacancy was created by the death this month of Max C. Wakeman, Marquette, who had held the office since it was established in 1946.

Eldred is district game supervisor for District 3, which embraces Delta and Marquette Counties and the west half of Alger County.

Approximately 35 persons in Michigan are qualified to take the examination for the position. Among them are the four district game supervisors in the Upper Peninsula.

Hoton Tech Given Trout Rearing Site

The Michigan College of Mining and Technology is rapidly acquiring some fine physical assets for its forestry department.

Last November the Ford Motor Company fund donated its Alberta townsite in Baraga County to the college for establishment of a forestry center. The gift included a sawmill and more than 1,700 acres of timberland.

Heavy Flood Waters

This month the Conservation Department turned over its Otter River trout-rearing station 20 miles south of here to the college for use as a forestry camp.

Completed in the spring of 1953, the station has not been used by the department recently because (1) the department has space at its rearing station on the middle branch of the Ontonagon River near Watersmeet to carry on operations formerly conducted at the Otter River station and (2) the Otter River site is subject to heavy flood waters each spring, which had hampered fish raising there.

Log Building At Station

Jim Scully, Marquette, regional fisheries supervisor for the Conservation Department, said the Otter River station had been used mainly for rearing rainbow trout

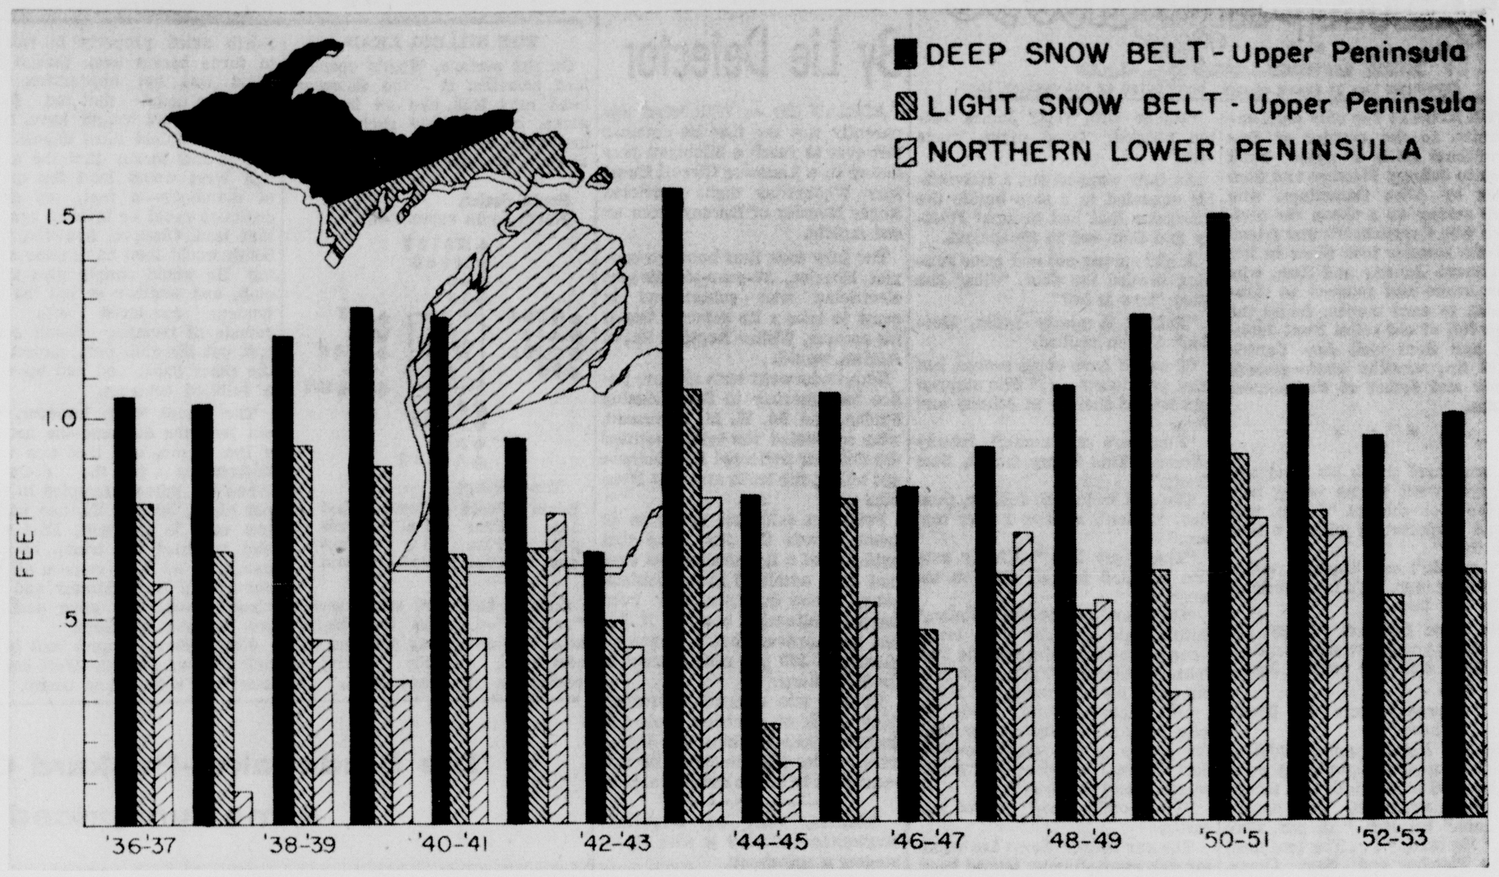

Included in the site are a large log building and a shed. The log structure can be used by students staying overnight at the station, he said. It has accommodations for 12 or 14 persons. Scully said the building also might be used for classroom purposes during field trips.

Justin Leonard Named Wildlife Society Head

LANSING — Justin W. Leonard, Michigan's Conservation Department research administrator, has been named president of the Wildlife Society.

The society is a continent - wide organization of fish and game conservationists and includes members from nearly all conservation departments in Canada, the United States and Mexico.

Graph Shows How U. P. Winters Can Be Rough On Deer

Heavy snow depths in the Upper Peninsula, particularly in the western half, can spell trouble for the deer herd. The above graph showing average snow depths from the winter of 1936-37 through last winter dramatically illustrates how the western Upper Peninsula is harder hit by heavy snows than any other part of the state. During the period covered by the graph, no area in Michigan ever has had larger average snow depths than the western Northern Peninsula, although the northern part of the Lower Peninsula has averaged greater depths than the eastern Upper Peninsula during three of the 18 winters 1941-42, 1947-48 and 1948-49). The last severe winter in the western Upper Peninsula occurred during 1950-51.

Attempts At Naming 'Baby Rabbit' Fail

BY JIM McKENNA

GRAND RAPIDS — When Conservation Commissioner Joseph P. Rahilly of Newberry raised the question about a specific name for the young rabbit—like calf for young cattle, pup for a young dog, fawn for the young deer, kit for a baby beaver — he really started something!

The letters are beginning to pour in.

First to suggest the name "bunny" was Harold Jonker, Grand Rapids, but the trouble with that suggestion (which came from several) is that "bunny" is commonly used for rabbits in general. "Bunny," as commonly used can mean a rabbit of any size or age.

Incidentally, Jonker suggests that this "name of young" opens up an interesting field throughout the whole range of domestic and wild animals. He proposes a contest.

From Elmira, Mrs. Dean Osborne writes that the correct name of the young rabbit or hare is "Leveret," and concludes her letter on a jolly note: "You can't stump the old farmers' wives yet! Ha! Ha!"

But maybe we can!

Mrs. Tillie Abbott, Grand Rapids, pasted the clipping of the original item on a postcard and sent it in with the terse comment: "Try 'Leveret.' "

Others submitted that name, too, but of these the one who really played it safe was Mrs. Frank Noor, Grand Rapids. She pointed out that both the Encyclopedia Brittanica and the New Century Dictionary define the young hare as a "Leveret," but she notes that the reference IS to hares and she suggests its application to rabbits also because "I do believe most of the American rabbits belong to that family."

Thus far we have found no reference work which includes young of the rabbit under the name "Leveret." Hares, yes. But the cottontail rabbit, which started the argument, is not a hare.

Michigan's snowshoe "rabbits" are hares. The cottontail is not.

Genetically, there's about as much difference as between dog and fox.

Dogs and wolves will mix, ditto dogs and coyotes. They're all members of the dog family. Dogs and foxes don't mix. The fox is of the vulpine family.

Hares and rabbits don't mix in the wild.

And so, if the hare and the rabbit are not the same, then the name "Leveret" is OK for young hares but that still leaves the field wide open for a name for the small bunny.

How about some coined-name suggestions—like Cotty or Rabun or something?

Wee Rabbits

Dear Sir:

The "rabbits" here are really hares, scientifically speaking, "smaller ones being known as rabbits," according to the Century Dictionary. Also according to the same authority, I find.

"Leveret, n. (old French, Levrete, dim. of levre, current French, lievre, from Latin 'Lepus,' hare)—a hare in its first year."

So that's the word for a wee rabbit, yes?

Two Upper Peninsula residents have been named officers of the Michigan Bear Hunters Association and one has been appointed to the board of directors. Alex VanLuven, Brimley, and Francis Drake, Crystal Falls, were elected regional vice-presidents. Otto Tompkins, Sault Ste. Marie, was chosen a director. Carl T. Johnson, Cadillac, was re-elected president of the group.

Up near Chapleau, Ont., recently, Conservation Officer Mickey Linklater perched up on top of a Canadian Pacific Railway "Stop, Look and Listen" sign for three and a half hours. All this time, a hungry bear at the base of the criss-cross railway sign tried to stare him down. Mickey didn't budge until the animal ambled down the tracks, pausing from time to time to look back and drool.

Through the sale of wood products, Michigan's forests earned $515,000 for the people of the state during 1954, the first year the half-million mark has been exceeded. In 1941, forest sales totaled only about $7,000. Each year since then the general trend of sales has been upward.

19.5-Year-Old Doe Reported In Wisconsin

What is the longevity record for the white-tailed deer?

Two weeks ago it was reported on this page that the oldest white-tailed deer on record in the United States was a 16 and a half year old doe that lived in New York's Adirondack Mountains. In the same article it was reported that the record for the Upper Peninsula is a 12-year-old doe that was killed by stray dogs at the Cusino Wildlife Experiment Station in 1953.

Mother Killed By Car

Now comes word from Wisconsin of a doe that died in Vilas County on Dec. 10, 1949 at the age of 19 years, six months. Found as a fawn after her mother had been killed by a car on June 15, 1930, the deer followed a group of people to the Dairymen's Country Club in Vilas County and made herself at home there until her death.

According to the Wisconsin Conservation Bulletin, the deer, known at Patsy, was never confined, but was never seen more than a mile from the club lodge.

Waterfowl Flooding Project In Schoolcraft County Turns Into Good Pike Fishing Area

SENEY — You can't have your cake and eat it, too.

That seems to be one of the conclusions drawn from the Stanley Lake flooding project northeast of here.

Potentially a good waterfowl area, the Stanley Lake and Little Fox River region in Schoolcraft County was flooded intially in 1950. A two - foot head of water at the dam flooded 125 acres and water levels have been maintained constantly since 1952.

But pike found the flooded area to their liking, and pike and waterfowl don't always get along on the best of terms. In this case, at any rate, the pike proved the more advantageous quarry for sportsmen.

Because of the high pike population and good fishing, increased human occupancy probably contributed to the fact that no nesting waterfowl were observed and no duck broods seen in the area in the past two years. Predations on ducklings by the great numbers of pike present also could have helped discourage nesting waterfowl.

A third factor also appeared to be operative in keeping ducks off the area — lack of good nesting and escape cover. Edward J. Mikula, biologist at the Cusino Wildlife Experiment Station who conducted a resurvey of the area, said, "In appraising the changes in vegetation, it appears that there has been an increase in the good duck foods but no changes in good nesting cover on the area. Also, there is quite an extensive area of deep water which is nearly devoid of vegetation, a factor which markedly reduces the value of this project as a migrating waterfowl feeding area."

Mikula said there was some utilization of the area during the last two years by migrating waterfowl, principally diving ducks, but that the hunter kill success has been light.

Thus, although the Stanley Lake area appears a poor bet for the hunter, it has developed into a fine spot for fishermen.

Grand Marais Man Lays Claim To Killing 182-Pound Wolf In '35

GRAND MARAIS—A resident of Grand Marais may have killed the largest timber wolf on record in the United States.

Earl Eastman, Flint barber who moved here a year ago, lays claim to having shot a male wolf which, he says, was found to have weighed 182 pounds.

Seton Lists 168-Pounder

If that is correct, it could be the largest timber wolf ever recorded for this country. The largest timber wolf listed by Ernest Thompson Seton in his exhaustive "Lives of Game Animals" is a 168-pound animal killed in Billings County, N. Dak., in 1902. It measured seven feet, 10 inches in total length.

A search of other texts on mammals failed to disclose any record of a timber wolf surpassing 180 pounds in weight, although a story published in The Marquette Mining Journal in 1924 stated that "Neil Steffens, caretaker for the city of Marquette at the Silver Lake dam, brought in a large timber wolf which weighed 180 pounds. He shot it in front of his camp door."

Killed In Alger County

Eastman said he shot the huge wolf near noon Nov. 18 during the 1935 deer season while he was hunting off the Rhody Creek trail in the vicinity of Mocassin Lake in Alger County.

Eastman stated that there was 17 inches of snow on the ground the day he killed the wolf. He said he saw a doe and two yearling deer racing off to his left and heard a strange cry, which it turned out was uttered by the big lobo in pursuit of the deer.

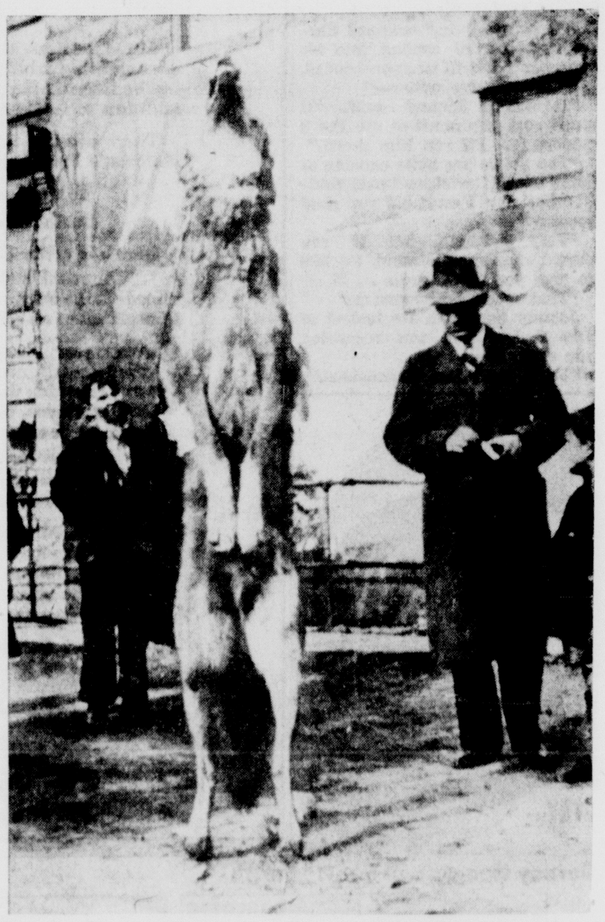

The hunter raised his rifle and shot at the wolf. The shot passed in front of the wolf, but the animal leaped into the air and Eastman shot again, striking the wolf in the side. Mortally wounded, the animal rolled down toward Eastman and lunged at the hunter before collapsing.

At the same time, Eastman said, he heard another wolf, but did not see it. He later found its tracks and noted that it appeared to have injured one of its feet in a trap. Eastman assumed this was the mate to the animal he had killed. A few months later a large wolf was trapped west of Newberry. One of its feet was crooked, leading Eastman to believe it may have been the mate he had heard at the time he killed the big male.

Eight Feet In Length

Eastman said he weighed his mammouth wolf on a scale in Grand Marais. He gave the following measurements: Length from tip of nose to tip of tail, eight feet, one inch; height at shoulders, 39 inches; measurement through skull, 12 and three-quarters inches.

The wolf hide was made into a rug which Eastman said he later donated to the National Trap Association as a prize which was won in a trap shooting contest by a Detroit policeman.

Wolf killed by Earl Eastman, now of Grand Marais in 1935 while Eastman was hunting in Mocassin Lake vicinity of Alger County.

Once Plentiful In U. P., Moose Herd Of Today Restricted To Isle Royale

By BERT STOLL

Except for the herd on isolated Isle Royale far out in Lake Superior, moose are few and far between in Michigan forest areas.

Early records show that both moose and elk were once present in considerable numbers in Michigan, but they have been almost extinct on the mainland of the state since the lumbering era, excepting, of course, the reintroduced herd of elk in the Pigeon River State Forest area.

Great Excitement Prevailed

An occasional moose is seen in the eastern end of the Upper Peninsula and these animals are believed to have crossed the St. Mary's River from neighboring Ontario.

Three or four years ago, the writer came into St. Ignace to file a story on the opening day of bird season in the Upper Peninsula and great excitement prevailed in this community on the north side of the Straits of Mackinac.

Housewives, Children Scared

A full-grown bull moose had ranged through the town, scaring housewives and children before wandering off across the golf course and disappearing in the woods to the west along Lake Michigan. One housewife was hanging up clothes in her backyard when the big moose made his sudden appearance. The washing went in one direction, the housewife another and the moose in still another.

Three moose were also seen in the vicinity of Pickford at the eastern end of the U. P., south of the Soo, a couple of years ago. One large moose ambled down a side road ahead of a car in the same area last year.

Strong, Ungainly Animal

Referring to Dr. G. W. Bradt's Michigan Wildlife Sketches (available from the Conservation Department, Lansing, for 25 cents), the moose is a large, immensely strong and ungainly animal, blackish-brown with pale legs and belly. Its neck is so short that it can graze only by kneeling or straddling.

From the throat hangs a long hairy strip of dewlap skin called a "bell" which, in old age draws up into a sort of pouch. On his massive head, the bull carries a tremendous pair of flattened antlers, which are shed each winter, and grown entirely new each summer. An adult bull may weigh as much as 1,600 pounds.

Well-Watered Forest

The moose is a creature of well watered forest, Dr. Bradt says. They are fond of wading into the water neck-deep in summertime, eagerly devouring aquatic vegetation and often going completely under water after lily roots. They are splendid swimmers and do not hesitate to cross lakes several miles in width.

Moose eat leaves and twigs of both hardwoods and conifers, straddling trees of considerable size so that the foliage may be reached.

Invitations And Challenges

In autumn, bull moose, with their freshly-grown antlers strong and bright, roam the woods in search of mates, bawling out invitations and challenges day and night.

The challenges are frequently accepted and terrific combats between rivals follow.

Moose may be hunted by stalking, or "calling" with birch bark "moose horns."

Ridiculous Creatures

We well recall a bright moonlight night in October some years ago when, with Howard Brennan, gold prospector, we were coming out by canoe to the railroad north of Gogama, Ont., via the water route up Lake Mesomikenda some 30 miles. We stopped overnight at a deserted trapper's cabin on the lake shore. Howard exercised his prowess with a moose horn and within an hour we had an enraged bull thrashing around the brush just a few hundred feet from the cabin. We retired inside and the moose finally decided it hadn't been a cow moose calling him after all.

Moose calves are born in late spring and are ridiculous creatures with long awkward legs and long clumsy hips. They are readily tamed and reared in captivity and have been trained to pull sledges in Canada and Scandanavia.

LAST STRONGHOLD—Isle Royale, where this photo of a bull moose was taken, is the Upper Peninsula's last stronghold for this majestic animal. Scattered individuals, apparently immigrants from the Sault region of Ontario, are reported occasionally on the U. P. mainland. They have been seen as far west as Alger and Delta Counties in recent months.

Tree Spares Hunter From Charging Boar

BAMBERG, S. C. —(AP)—Charles S Rentz had a bout with a wild hog while on a deer hunt and emerged the victor over the snorting and charging boar.

He heard dogs barking as if they had treed an animal. He left his shooting stand and went about 150 yards into the woods where he sighted several baying hounds.

A snorting animal with tusks came charging out of the bushes It was the first wild hog he had ever seen.

The enraged boar headed for Rentz, who ducked behind a pine tree. The wild animal plowed past him, ripping bark off the tree with his tusks.

Rentz sought cover on the opposite side of the tree as the boar turned and charged again. The tusks tore off more bark.

Rentz kept the tree between him and the boar until he could aim his gun and kill the animal with a load of buckshot.

Deer Meeting Scheduled In Canadian Soo

The Great Lakes deer study group will hold its annual meeting this year at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., on Feb. 15-17.

Biologists and foresters from Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Ontario will attend the conference. Included on the program will be lectures, panel discussions and a visit to the Batchawana deer yard about 100 miles north of the Canadian Soo.

The conference was held last year in Rhinelander, Wis.

508,446 ACRES OF FOREST

Founders' Day Plans Completed At Meeting

The discussion topic and the panel members for the program to be presented at the All-Escanaba Founders' Day PTA meeting Tuesday, Feb. 8, at 8 p. m. in the Junior High School were announced today by Mrs. Glenn Mathison, PTA Council president. The panel members met at the Junior High School Thursday afternoon for a preliminary organization session.

Panel members, selected by the PTA presidents, consist of a parent and a teacher from each of the five Escanaba grade schools and are as follows: Barr School, Miss Vendela Sundquist, fifth grade teacher, and Mrs. M. H. Garrard Jr., parent; Franklin, Mrs. James Rouman, kindergarten teacher, and Atty. William E. Anderson, parent; Jefferson, Mrs. Catherine Locke, first grade teacher and principal, and Mrs. Len Dahl, parent and PTA first vice-president; Washington, Mrs. Sam Molod, kindergarten teacher, and Mrs. Wayne Cooper, parent; Webster, Louis Diedrich, fourth grade teacher, and William E. Fisher, parent. Atty. Anderson will serve as discussion leader and George Ruwitch, assistant superintendent of schools, as resource person.

Discussion Topic

The topic chosen for discussion will be "How Good Are Our Schools?" During the discussion a number of questions submitted by parents from the various PTA units will be considered. Particular emphasis will be placed upon school problems and what PTA can do to help solve them.

The program has been planned by a committee, consisting of the presidents of the five grade school units. Mrs. Karl E. Gray, Barr, Mrs. Joseph S. Dickson, Franklin, Mrs. Carl Davis, Washington, Mrs. William E. Fisher, Webster and Mrs. Leonard Vader, Jefferson.

A "school count" will be taken at the meeting and the school having the highest percentage of parents in attendance will receive an award.

Equipment Award

Each school has made a donation toward the purchase of some suitable grade school piece of equipment to be used as the award which will be presented at the meeting to the PTA president whose school has the greatest representation at the meeting.

Personals

Miss Carolyn Lorenson left by plane for Lansing Thursday after spending a two weeks' vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Lorenson, 1219 N. 22nd St. Miss Lorenson is with the Michigan Bell Telephone Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Lagasse of Winnipeg, Manitoba, who were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Gregoire, 610 S. 19th St., left this morning for their home. They were accompanied by Mrs. Eugenie LaCosse, who has spent the past three months at the Gregoire home.

Guests at the Lowell Hebbard home, 704 S. 14th St., were Mr. Hebbard's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hebbard of Ishpeming, who left today for Redlands, Calif., where they will spend two months.

Mrs. Ella Wilson, 418 Ludington St., today left for Neenah, Wis., where she will visit with her daughter, Mrs. Harold Kuehl, and new granddaughter for about a week.

Mrs. John Sepic, 908 Minnesota Ave., Gladstone, and Mrs. Henry Soderstrom, Perkins, left today for Chicago where they will spend three or four days with their daughters.

Mrs. M. D. Perring, Sherman Hotel, today left for Decatur, Ill., where she will attend the wedding of her nephew, John William Perring.

Mrs. J. R. Connelly, 308 S. 14th St., left today for Green Bay where she will visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter O'Connor.

Gold Star Mothers Will Meet Monday

Gold Star Mothers will hold a regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Harold Johnston, 1213 Washington Ave., Monday, Jan. 31, at 7:30 p. m. Membership month is being observed and attendance of every member is urged. Lunch will be served during the social hour.

Members are asked to visit the Allo Funeral Home this evening to pay respects to Mrs. Ernest Dufresne, who was a member of the Gold Star Mothers. Four members of the organization will form an honorary escort at the services for Mrs. Dufresne Saturday.

Cake baking tip: beat egg yolks, for use in sponge cake batter, until thick and pale colored. This beating prevents the yolks from settling at the bottom of the cake and making a soggy streak.

The leather look in fashion is demonstrated three ways in a greatcoat, a suit and the newly-revived motoring coat. Greatcoat (left) is in silky tangerine leather, has sloped shoulders and narrowed top that flows into long, smooth lines. Youthful page-boy suit (center) has fitted jacket in pale pink kid leather with dyed-to-match cashmere skirt and jacket trim. Back in fashion after an absence of some 50 years is the three-quarter length motoring coat (right). This is in Viking blue kid with oversized patch pockets, deep buttoned-back cuffs and tiny squared collar. Emphasis in resort collections is on pastel colors.

By GAILE DUGAS

NEW YORK—(NEA)— The custom-made look in leather appears in the resort collections in combination with pastel colors, imported cashmere and fine hand-loomed woolens.

The colors have the glowing beauty of the tropics. There's a special emphasis on pale pink, blue, lilac and green for both daytime and formal wear. But there are stronger shades, too, and the muted colorings: pale beige smoky gray, tangerine, purple, a softened yellow and charcoal and black in the velvety suedes.

Suits demonstrate great variety in jacket types: bloused spencer, boxy and gently fitted. Most are fitted to the figure by careful cut and detailing. The coat silhouette most liked is full and flowing but there are some wraparounds and some that have a belted-in fullness.

Shoulders are gently rounded and there's lots of collar interest with variations on the shawl, notched and petal collars.

Many daytime suits get companion tweeds for skirts and for jacket trim. Or, beautiful cashmeres are dyed to match the leather. Some of the formal greatcoats have fur and jewels as trimming.

Buy Chicks From Hatcheries Close To Home-Heirman

Important That Chicks Arrive In Good Condition

By J. L. HEIRMAN
County Agricultural Agent

This is the time of the year when you will receive several letters from hatcheries advertising chicks. The thing to keep in mind is this: Do not order chicks from a company too far away. Chicks on the road too long arrive in a weakened condition and sometimes give you plenty of trouble. In buying chicks, buy them from a reliable hatchery near home. The chicks will be on the road only a few hours and arrive in good condition. If you get them off to a good start at the very beginning, your cost will be down and they will bring returns at an earlier date.

We have been reading some about the new school milk program. Can it do some good for dairy farmers? We think it can.

The program reimburses schools three to four cents for every half pint of milk they serve. We have about one and a half million children in Michigan who could come under the program. This would use up one third of the milk surplus. The program would be good for the children and also the farmers.

* * *

While we are on the subject of milk we might say a few words about bulk handling of milk. Several farmers from the county have been asking about it. The number of bulk tanks on farms is increasing rapidly. The new system of handling milk is more efficient and more sanitary. Most folks expect a great expansion in the next few years. If you are one of the farmers planning to go to bulk tank cooling, give it some serious thought. While a farmer can expect increased profits with this type of equipment, there are also increased costs. Anyone with fewer than 12-15 cows should forget bulk tank cooling equipment because of cost.

If you are one using stilbestrol feed to fatten cattle, better make sure that no other animals get it. The hormone, stilbestrol, which can be sold to farmers as a part of a feed mix may harm other livestock. In a nutshell, do not use it for breeding animals or to increase milk production. It won't work.

A little time spent now in providing yourself with a first-aid kit is in order. Numerous injuries on farms could be treated promptly if a first aid kit were available.

A suitable kit should include adhesive tape, sterile cotton, an antiseptic, tincture of benzoine and white vasoline for burns. If you have one or more kits around the farmstead and one on the tractor, you will have it available when needed.

Maple Syrup Producers Of Delta Prepare For Season

A meeting was held in Escanaba on Jan. 25 with maple syrup producers of Delta County and surrounding areas.

Professor P. W. Robbins, forestry department, Michigan State College, outlined production practices that will aid operators in getting greater yields of maple syrup from their sugar bushes. Robbins, who is engaged in maple syrup research at MSC, stressed the importance of hanging buckets early enough in the season to catch all of the good runs, proper sugar bush care, and the tapping of the trees that yield a good flow of sap high in sugar content.

Robbins is a native of Iron Mountain and is well acquainted with the Upper Peninsula, believes that there is a good opportunity for farmers in this region to develop a substantial maple syrup industry. Robbins stated that the following factors favor Upper Peninsula production:

"Many young Maple stands in the Upper Peninsula are now just reaching tapping size. Properly cared for, these can be developed into high yielding bushes. The expanding tourist trade offers a good market outlet. Syrup making comes at a slack time of the year for many farmers and it fits well into the operations of a small, family-size farm. Furthermore, on the basis of per hour of labor expended, the gross and net financial return from syrup making is high."

Hang Buckets Early

For increased production, Robbins emphasized the importance of tapping trees early.

"In Delta County, the first good runs might occur early in March, and they often come by March 10. The failure to get the first good run or two can reduce the producers syrup crop for the season by ⅓ or more. First runs yield the highest grade of syrup and for this reason, it is also important that the run is not missed," stated Robbins.

For downstate producers, Michigan State College in cooperation with the United States Weather Bureau, forecasts sap weather over the College radio station. Robbins hopes that a similar forecasting service can be worked out for Upper Peninsula producers.

Sugar Bush Care

According to Robbins, the key to developing a high yielding bush is proper cultural care.

"The ideal sap producing tree should have a clear trunk of ⅓ to ½ its height, and a crown spread of ½ the height of the tree. Trees of this type can be developed through a program of periodic thinning as the trees grow. Thinnings should be made when the limbs of trees in the upper crown level start to intermingle.

"As thinnings are made such trees as elm, basswood, and ironwood should in particular be removed, and the sound sugar maples should be left to grow. All livestock must be fenced out of the sugar bush if maximum yields of sap are to be obtained."

Tapping Suggestions

Trees should not be tapped until they reach 10 inches in diameter, Robbins asserts. The number of buckets to hang per tree may be determined as follows: On trees 10 to 16 inches in diameter, hang one bucket; on trees 16 to 20 inches, two buckets; on trees 20 to 26 inches, three buckets; on trees over 26 inches, four buckets. From season to season, trees should be progressively tapped on all sides so that a new layer of sapwood has a chance to grow over the tap hole. Continuous tapping on one side results in excessive dead wood that reduces sap flow. Research to date shows that all sides of a tree yield about equal well over a period of several seasons. A 7/16 inch tap hole bored to a depth of 2½ to 3 inches is suggested.

The sap of sugar maple varies in sugar content from about 1 to 4 per cent, with the average being around 2 per cent. Whenever possible, a producer should tap only those trees that yield the most sap high in sugar content. The sugar content of sap can be checked with an inexpensive sap hydrometer. The collecting and boiling of sap high in sugar content reduces labor, fuel, and equipment costs.

For anyone planning to start a sugar bush, Robbins suggests that it be at least 500 buckets in size. A smaller bush is not too efficient. From a 500 bucket bush, an operator can expect an average yield of about 100 gallons of syrup each year. A bush of this size will provide the operator with about 20 to 25 days of productive work each year.

Plant Alsike Clover Early

If you plan to sow red or alsike clover next spring, better buy the seed early.

That's advice from J. L. Heirman, County Agricultural Agent, Escanaba. He points out that the seed supply of the two legumes is the smallest in years.

That is despite the fact that Michigan had the largest red clover seed crop in the country in 1954. Drought last year knocked out a large share of what would have been a normal supply in other areas.

Leyton Nelson, extension farm cropsman at Michigan State College, also points out that there will be a larger demand for legume seed over the country. That's because of the 1954 drought, tool. Thousands of acres will have to be resown.

And many acres that would normally be sown to wheat, corn and other crops are expected to go into hay and pasture for livestock.

Farmers Must Request Sugar Beet Acreage

Farmers desiring to plant sugar beets in 1955 must make a request between now and February 15, according to Bruce Clothier, Chairman of the Michigan Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee. Farmers may secure a form for this purpose from their sugar beet company fieldman or from the county ASC office.

Due to excess sugar beet production this last year in the United States, restrictions on plantings may be necessary for the ensuing year. The State ASC Committee has appointed a Sugar Beet Advisory Committee to help work out the details. This committee includes representatives of both sugar beet growers and processors and consists of the following:

Herman Bluemer, St. Louis Beet Growers Ass'n; Carl Glave, Monitor Sugar Division; Elmer Haines, Caro Sugar Beet Growers; Max Henderson, Michigan Sugar Company; W. F. Schmitt, Great Lakes-Lake Shore Sugar Cos.; Virgil Wetters, Monitor Sugar Beet Growers; Loren S. Armbruster (ex-officio), F. & M. Beet Sugar Association; Arthur A. Schupp (ex-officio), F. & M. Beet Sugar Association.

The State ASC Committee has approved the committee's recommendation for the allocation of the State Sugar Beet acreage of 81,420 acres to factory districts as follows:

Alma-Mt. Fleasant, 5,639; Blissfield, 1,048; Buckeye, 1,017; Caro, 10,047; Carrollton, 9,289; Croswell, 10,345; Fremont, 205; Lansing, 4,443; Monitor, 15,780; Sebewaing, 17, 158; St. Louis, 6,310; Superior, 139.

The opportunity to state their desire to plant sugar beets shall be afforded all growers up to and including February 15, 1955. Those growers who fail to request acreage by that time shall lose their right to an allotment should the total requests exceed the district acreage allotment. The 81,420 acres established by the United States Department of Agriculture as the maximum that may be planted in Michigan compares with 76,672 acres planted in 1954. The 1955 acreage, therefore, represents an increase of 5.8 per cent over last year. This is Michigan's share, however, of an acreage slightly below the 1954 U. S. total.

In accordance with the provisions of the Sugar Act of 1948, the domestic sugar beet industry is allocated a maximum production of 1,800,000 tons of raw sugar. In 1953, production exceeded the legal limit and present estimates indicate that the production of sugar from the 1954 crop may reach two million tons. This is the situation that requires the curtailment of 1955 U. S. acreage.

After the February 15, 1955, deadline for requesting acreage the following action will be taken by the State Advisory Committee and the State ASC Committee:

1. If the total of all individual requests in a factory district does not exceed the total allotted the district, then the allotment to the grower shall be his requesed acreage. The company and the grower may then enter into a contract for such acreage.

2. Unused acreage in any factory district may be transferred to factory districts needing such acreage.

Transferral of acreage will be made in accordance with procedures to be set up later by the State ASC Committee with its Advisory Committee. If it is found that the total of all requests for acreage in the State exceed the 81,420 acres allocated to the State, then it will become necessary to establish procedures to reduce the individual requests. It is, therefore, very important for farmers to make an early request for the acreage they desire to plant in 1955.

Safety Hints Given To Curb High Quota Of Farm Accidents

Farm accidents injure or cripple about one and a quarter million people in the United States each year. Dave Steinicke, farm safety specialist at Michigan State, offers five tips that may help prevent you from joining this number.

First, keep farm machinery in good repair. Second, handle farm animals carefully. Third, use sharp edged tools with caution. Fourth, take proper care in using, handling and storing poisonous chemicals. Fifth, install, use, and repair electrical appliances and equipment properly.

And, of course, you may lessen the seriousness of many accidents by keeping a first-aid kit handy and knowing how to use it, and by calling a doctor promptly when you have a mishap.

Plan Now To Plant Living Snow Fences Along Home Roads

Now is the time to plan for a living snow fence and windbreak on the farm, advises J. L. Heirman, Delta county agricultural agent.

A short trip over Delta county's countryside, he points out, can tell how badly trees are needed for that purpose.

Robert E. Dils, a Michigan State College forester, says the snowbreak is needed mostly in these areas: In narrow valleys where snow piles up on the road, on exposed side hills, for protection of road cuts and on level, open country where wind has a long sweep.

A living snow fence has many advantages, according to Dils, and farmers can afford to plant one for their own convenience as well as the public.

A snowbreak will reduce the cost of snow removal by about one-third, according to the forester. It will save the cost of snow fences, it may serve as a shelterbelt and it provides cover for birds and game.

That's in addition to the beauty it gives to a roadside and to the farm, Dils, adds.

Information on windbreaks, shelterbelts and snowbreaks may be obtained at the county extension office at Escanaba. Or you can write to the Cooperative Extension Service at Michigan State College. Ask for Extension Folder F-118.

Farmers Advised To Use Care In Selecting Heifers

You can't expect to hit the jackpot every time you select a heifer calf to raise, but the percentage will be higher if you use a little expert choosing.

This advice is from J. L. Heirman, Delta county agricultural agent. He passes along a check list of points for rating your heifer calves. Here they are:

Try to get heiters from high producing dams—and set your standards high. A 400-pound minimum butterfat record is not too big.

If several of the calf's ancestors have been culled because of low production, don't save the calf. An early trip to the stockyards is cheaper.

Don't overlook type. Type of both sides of the family should be checked. It should have a good appearance—alert, good length, sharp features.

Here is what a calf should look like: The rump should be level and square, and the chest wide, open and deep. Teats should be well spaced. The rear legs should be straight and set squarely under the body.

BOTH PRAISE O-JIB-WA BITTERS

"Ten days was all that it took O-JIB-WA BITTERS to bring me the results that I sought for so long," says Mr. Walter Kleimola, R No. 2, Ironwood, Michigan.

"My wife is the one who first introduced me to O-JIB-WA BITTERS. She began taking it about a year and a half ago, because her arms were swollen and very painful. Her blood circulation was very poor and brown spots began to appear on her skin. She had tried many medicines, but nothing helped very much until she used O-JIB-WA. The pains left and the spots went away, so she has been recommending it to others ever since. I read on the folder packed with the bottle, that it was good for stomach ailments, and as I have been suffering for a long time with my stomach, I decided to give it a trial. About all I had been able to eat was like baby food, and of course anything fried would about kill me. O-JIB-WA BITTERS helped me right away and in 10 days I wasn't bothered at all. Because of the excellent results we have both received from your medicine, we are glad to tell all who suffer about the merits of O-JIB-WA BITTERS."

State College Prepares Good Farm Account Book

There is nothing magic about a good farm accountbook but it sure helps to take the hokus-pocus out of filing Federal Income Tax Returns, so says J. L. Heirman, County Agricultural Agent.

At the request of many Michigan farmers, a unique farm account book has been prepared by Michigan State College accountants which removes not only much of the mystery, about tax reporting but also reduces the overpayment of taxes resulting from sloppy bookkeeping procedures. This supplying of books in response to a state-wide request for assistance to farmers in financial management and resulted in banks and other business agencies joining forces to distribute more than 30,000 books a year in Michigan. In most cases these have been donated by the banks, or other distributing agencies, at no cost to the farmer. Bankers know that their farmer clients will be more successful businessmen if their management decisions and credit needs are based on a good set of books.

Farmers are learning that the income tax computations are also used for reporting social security taxes due the government. Thus, the same book solves two preplexing problems to the farmer with the same stroke of the pencil.

More people get more news from newspapers than from all other sources combined.

GLADSTONE

Plan Discussion Of Safety Drive

Plans for an assembly at which the recent Safety Conference held in Escanaba under joint auspices of the Escanaba Daily Press and the Michigan State Police will be discussed were made at a meeting of the GHS Student Council this week.

A pantomime on etiquette also will be presented at the gathering by Student Council members if there is sufficient time. Beverly Timler is chairmah of the assembly.

The school dance after the Newberry game Saturday night will be in charge of the varsity and reserve cheerleaders.

The Student council approved the request of the reserve cheer leaders to have a dance on a fourth period study hour and it will be held if permission is granted by the office of Superintendent Wallace Cameron.

Pre-Nuptial Shower

Miss Marilyn Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Nelson was the honored guest at a pre-nuptial shower party held at her parental home Wednesday evening. Thirty-five guests were present. Canasta, smear, Scrabble and Casino was played. Mrs. Leonard Elquist was high in canasta and Mrs. Torval Kallerson, low. In smear, Mrs. Lloyd Haglund was high, Mrs. Roy Hawkinson, second and Mrs. Harry Olive, low. Miss Rosalie Brock was the winner in Scrabble and Mrs Andrew Anderson in Casino. The special awad went to Mrs. Leonard Elquist.

A delicious lunch was served at the close of play and the honored guest opened many beautiful and useful gifts.

Party arrangements were made by Mrs. Glenn Nelson, Mrs. Floyd Dausey, Mrs. Fred Burch and Mrs Norman Nelson.

The marriage of Miss Nelson and Russell Larson of Manistee, son of Mr. and Mrs Henry Larson of Norway, will take place at 4 p. m. on Saturday, February 12, at the First Lutheran Church, City.

Miss Nelson was also honored at a shower on Monday evening at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Clifford Peterson. The choir of the First Lutheran church gave the party and presented Miss Nelson with a gift.

Twenty six members were present. The evening was spent socially and a lunch was served at the conclusion of the event.

Cheap Ring Turns Out To Be $1,200 Diamond

DETROIT (AP) — High school friends of Lillian Dzialak were quite impressed by the over-sized setting in the ring she has been wearing to school the last few days.

Seventeen-year-old Lillian agreed it was quite a rock all right, but explained it was nothing but glass. She had found the ring in a paper bag along with some dollar earrings she had bought at a jewelry store near her home in neighboring Hamtramck. The clerk, she reasoned, had slipped in a cheap little ring as a bonus.

All the admiration from her friends, though, started Lillian wondering. She took the ring back and found store employes in a dither. A $1,200 diamond ring was missing.

It was the one Lillian had found in the paper bag.

Eskymos Seek Second Win Over Tall Marquette Team

A tall Marquette team that observers feel is much better than its record of two wins in eight games will provide the opposition for the Escanaba Eskymos Saturday night at 8:30 in the Junior High gym.

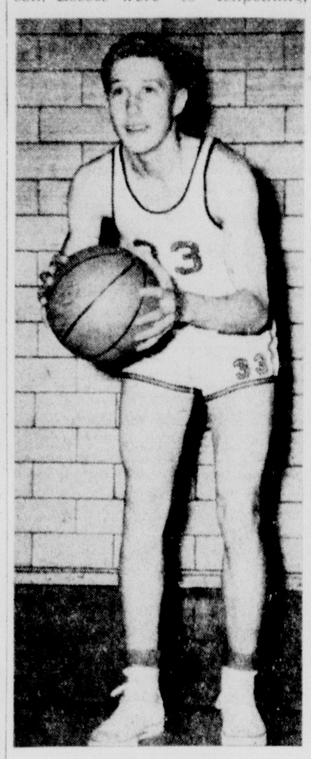

One of the eight losses was a 54-43 setback in a thrilling game with the Eskymos at Marquette Dec. 3.

Marquette's Redmen have also lost to Sault Ste. Marie, Newberry, Ironwood, Bessemer in overtime, Ishpeming and last Friday night Negaunee. Their two wins came over Munising and Manistique.

Tall Front Line

Marquette's front line is way over six-feet in height. Glenn Morrison and John Penglase are both 6-3 and operate at forward posts while 6-1 Bruce Micklow is the pivotman. The starting guards are Pete Hauserman and Roger LeDuc. Most likely reserves to see action are Paul Murk and Don Perrin.

Coach Jim Betchek's Eskymos turned in a breath-taking 63-62 victory over the Marinette Marines in their last start to give the team a 5-5 record this season. Losses were to Ishpeming, Stephenson, Gladstone, Marinette and Holy Name while wins came over Marinette, Menominee, Ishpeming, Iron Mountain and Marquette.

BILL BOLM

The Eskymo coach will send his regular starters into action with Lawrence Sauve at center, Bill Bolm and Mike Heminger at forwards, Jim Beck and Tom Hogan at guards.

Bolm Top Scorer

Bolm continues to pace the Eskymo on the scoreboard with 149 points in 10 games for an average of just under 15 points per game. He hit his career high of 25 against the Marinette Marines last weekend, scoring 20 points in the second half. Bolm has scored in double figures in every Escanaba game this season except the opener in which he went scoreless.

The Eskymos will be home twice more before taking to the road again. They entertain Stephenson next Friday night and Gladstone on Tuesday, Feb. 8.

Bee teams will open Saturday night's activity at 7.

Emeralds Try To Climb Out Of League Cellar

MANISTIQUE — Coach Rudie Brandstrom's Emerald cagers will be fighting hard tonight to crawl from the Great Lakes Conference cellar by winning over a strong Negaunee five on the opponent's floor. The game starts at 8:15 p. m.

The Emeralds are in good physical condition, the coach reported, and can win if "they play the kind of basketball which they showed against Stephenson here Saturday night.

The starting lineup will put Bill Holm and Eddie Bernier at guard, Bob Corson and Ken Dixner at forward and Bob Hastings in center John Anderson, a reserve guard, has been looking very good in practice, Grandstrom said.

The Manistique quintet has lost conference games thus far to American Soo, Gladstone, Munising and Marquette. Next weekend they play away, against American Soo on Friday and the Canadian Soo on Saturday. A week from Tuesday they tangle again with Munising here.

Manistique reserves play Engadine at Engadine Saturday night.

Blackhawks Top Indians 5 To 2

The Escanaba Blackhawks notched their third straight victory in Upper Peninsula amateur hockey circles last night by defeating the Gladstone Indians 5-2 at the indoor rink.

After a 1-1 first period knot the Blackhawks rammed four goals home in the second period to clinch the victory. Gladstone's Gordon Haga, who had scored in the first period, hit the second goal for the Indians in the second period. Neither team scored in the third.

Dave Mileski led the Blackhawks with a pair of goals while Boot Boucher, Jim Brown and Aimo Muhonen dented the nets once each. Eddie Provo had three assists.

Although play was fast and rough, there were no penalties called in the game.

The Blackhawks return to action at Marquette next Thursday night.

Ivan Irwin of the Rangers is the only player in the National Hockey League born in the United States.

Sentinels Defeat Calumet By 7-4

MARQUETTE, Mich. — Marquette's Sentinels got back into their winning ways with a 7-4 decision over the Calumet Radars on Palestra ice last night to take over second place in the torrid Northern Michigan - Ontario Hockey League race.

It was the sixth victory for the Sentinels, who now have won more games than any other team in the circuit. They trail the leading Canadian Soo Esquires by one point.

Marquette jumped off to a three-goal lead in the opening period and was ahead by from two to five scores all the way. Veterans Jim Swenor and Julian 'Cud' VanOverloop each netted two goals, while Owen O'Brien was in on every Calumet tally with two goals and a pair of assists.

Despite zero weather, a crowd of 1,703 saw the game.

Marquette Wins 14th Straight

(By The Associated Press)

Even Marquette Coach Jack Nagle must be surprised over the Warriors' basketball success this season after their mediocre showing a year ago.

Marquette, the nation's 11th-ranking team, has put together a 14-game winning streak—longest in collegiate circles this season—after an opening loss to Michigan State.

The Warriors extended their skein with a 73-70 victory over Loyola of the South Thursday night. The streak will be on the line when the teams meet again in New Orleans tonight.

Nagle took over the helm at Marquette last season and his team won 11 and lost 15. Although Marquette had 10 lettermen returning for the 1954-55 campaign, Nagle never figured that his club would improve as much as it has.

Marquette piled up a 36-22 halftime bulge Thursday night but barely stood off a last-half surge by the New Orleans club.

Action again was light Thursday night with most of the major teams still idle due to midyear examinations.

Denver broke an 11-game Skyline Conference losing streak by upsetting defending champion Colorado A&M 73-69. Denver led at halftime 35-32 and never was headed.

GLADSTONE COG — Norm Butler, senior forward, is a valuable cog in the Gladstone Braves cage lineup. Butler will get a starting assignment tonight when the Braves invade Ishpeming in a key Great Lakes Conference game. Tomorrow night the Braves return to their home floor to face Newberry in another league clash. (Daily Press Photo)

Pitcher-Rich Braves Have More Coming Up

NEW YORK (AP) — The pitcher-rich Milwaukee Braves have more on the way. They are bringing up 11 new pitcher including a 23-game winner, two 18-game winners, a strikeout leader and another no-hit performer.

The Braves' rookie crop also includes five players with .300 or better batting averages, three with 20 or more home runs, and two who topped 100 runs batted in.

Humberto Robinson, 24-year-old native of Colon, Panama, who led the Sally League pitchers with a 23-8 won-lost record and a 2.41 ERA. Robinson also fanned 243 batters in 276 innings. Righthanders Paul Cave, 21, and Bob Trowbridge 24, won 18 games each for the same Jacksonville club, Cave striking out 150 and Trowbridge 195.

Crone Bought Up

Ray Crone, a 23-year-old righthander, had a 7-3 record at Toledo before he was brought up in the tail end of the season. One of his victories was a 3 - 0, no-hitter against St. Paul. Glenn Thompson, 26-year-old righthander with a 10-11 record, set a Southern Assn. strikeout record, fanning 19 New Orleans batters last Aug. 26.

Two righthanders, who scouts say can't miss as relief specialists, are Don McMahon and Roberto Vargas. McMahon, 24, had an 8-5 record at Atlanta and fanned 90 batters in 91 innings. Vargas was a 12-13 performer at Reading but sported a 2.92 earned run average.

Back for a third trial is George Crowe, the giant Negro first baseman, whose .334 batting average at Toledo was the league's second high. Crowe, 31, also hammered 34 home runs and drove in 128 runs. Frank Torre, 23, is another first base candidate. A .294 hitter at Atlanta, he went all season without making an error.

Outfield Star

Chuck Tanner, a 25-year-old outfielder, earned an all-star Southern Assn. berth with his .323 mark at Atlanta that included 20 homers and 101 runs batted in. Tom Whisenant, a teammate, also hit 20 homers and drove in 94 runs on a .285 average.

Jack Parks, a .312 hitting catcher from Atlanta, has an outside chance to land a second string berth behind Del Crandall. Infield hopefuls include Bill Caro, a .313 hitter at Jacksonville; Al Facchini, .328 hitting third baseman with Corpus Christi and Bob Malkmus, .295 second baseman with Evansville last year.

Golf Stars Gather To Honor Furgol

NEW YORK (AP) —Golf's brightest names, past and present, gathered Thursday night to pay tribute to National Open champion Ed Furgol and Billy Joe Patton, the colorful amateur from Morganton, N.C.

Furgol received the Ben Hogan Award as the player who overcame the greatest handicap and provided the most inspiration in the sport last year.

Patton, who came within a stroke of winning the Masters' title last spring, received the gold tee given by the Metropolitan Golf Writers Assn. as the person who made the greatest contribution to the sport in 1954.

Quite a coincidence happened at the Escanaba-Marinette basketball game the other night . . . Jim Beck, whose jersey number is 31, scored the 31st point for the Eskymos midway in the third period . . . Bill Bolm, whose number is 33, then hit a field goal to make the score 33 for Escanaba . . . And, to top it off, Tom Hogan hit Escanaba's next bucket to make it 35 . . . That's right, Hogan's number is 35.

And at a recent Manistique game, referee Ray Ranguette got a bad gash in his head when Emerald guard Ed Bernier clunked him with an elbow coming down with a rebound . . . The blood was flowing quite freely from the gash and a doctor was called from the stands to treat the wound . . . It turned out the doctor was Dr. A. B. Bernier, father of the basketball player.

Green Bay Central Catholic, Holy Name's Sunday afternoon cage foe, won a thrilling 62-60 game from Little Chute St. John in its last start . . . Victory came when a Central Cadet, Roy Smits, stole the ball and drove in for a layup with 15 seconds remaining in the game . . . Smits was high scorer for Coach Ted Fritsch's team with 18 points.

The 220 pound heavyweight boxer from Menominee will no doubt be the heaviest fighter in the Golden Gloves tournament here next week . . . But we doubt that he'll be the tallest . . . Crusaders Shoot For Seventh Straight At Green Bay Sunday

The Holy Name Crusaders will shoot for their seventh straight victory Sunday afternoon at 4 (EST) at Green Bay against the classy Central Catholic Cadets.

Coach Tom St. Germain's Crusader cagers have compiled a six-game victory streak in a record of eight wins against three defeats this season. The team hasn't lost a game since Dec. 18 when it beat Bishop Baraga of Marquette. Other victims in the string were an Alumni team, L'Anse, Gladstone, Gwinn and Marinette Lourdes.

Final Road Game

The game at Green Bay Sunday will mark the final road trip for Holy Name this season. The Crusaders will close out the campaign with four straight home stands against Munising, Stephenson, Rapid River and Gwinn.

Five juniors are likely to get starting assignments at Green Bay Sunday. Joe Juetten and Arnold Henriksen will be at forwards, John Berrigan at center, Gary Paler at one guard and either Mike Venne or Bill Lancour at the other. Lancour, senior, may get the nod because of the good showing he made in a reserve role at Marinette Lourdes.

JOE JUETTEN

Berrigan Has 293

Berrigan tops the team in scoring for the season with 293 points. The slick Crusader center has yet to score under 22 points in a game and has a high of 37, registered against Bishop Baraga. He has already passed his entire season output as a sophomore, when he compiled 286 points.

Other squad members who will make the trip are Denis McGinn, Jim Webber, Jim Greenwood, John Vadnais and Gary Hirn.

The Cadets, coached by Ted Fritsch, won their ninth game in 14 starts Tuesday night when they edged Little Chute St. John 62-60.

Top Green Bay scorer is center Jim Scheel with 245 points.

Bee teams will meet in a preliminary at 2:30.

Use Floodlights For Pine Mountain Jumps

IRON MOUNTAIN—Something new will be added to Giant Pine Mountain ski slide for the U. S. Olympic ski-jumping team tryouts here on February 25-26-27—floodlights.

For the first time in the history of American "major league" ski-jumping, a big hill will be lighted for emergency use. The lights are designed to lick the weather problem and give the public a show regardless of the elements.

In past years, too often high winds have forced the postponement of an afternoon event on the world's highest artificial ski scaffold. Records show that winds usually subside in the late afternoon and early evening. Jumping under floodlights may be the answer and the officials who run the biggest ski tournament in America are ready to take the gamble.

Used In Europe

Night jumping has been tried, and with success, in Europe, but never in America. There's no pattern to follow. But lighting experts have come up with a plan which will be ready for testing a week before the three-day extravaganza is scheduled to go on.

The 300-foot trail down the 156-foot high scaffold will be lighted by bright footlights. Likewise, footlights will illuminate the 632-foot long landing hill and outrun. That will take care of the jumpers.

For the benefit of the spectators who view the tournaments from the area at the base of the hill, floodlights will illuminate the air flight of the jumpers as they soar off the scaffold at a rate of 70 miles an hour.

Top Riders Slated

If the plan works, observers believe that it will result in the most colorful spectacle in the American history of the sport and may be a revolutionary development in ski-jumping.

Crowds as large as 25,000 have been disappointed here by afternoon postponements due to high winds. It means, if the experiment proves successful, that by staying over a few hours, the paying public will be able to see a show, regardless of weather.

The three-day show here in February will be the biggest and most important event on America's ski-jumping calendar. Every top jumper in America will be here battling for a berth on the six-man team which will compete in the 1956 Winter Olympic games in Cortina, Italy.

Wolverine Notebook

ANN ARBOR (AP) — There'll be a distinct Olympic flavor in the annual Michigan Relay Saturday.

Among the stars from abroad who will compete with domestic talent is Kikuo Moriya, a Japanese product who last year became the U. S. national collegiate champion in the two mile, running it in 9:24. Moriya will be accompanied by his coach, former U. S. indoor mile champ, Gil Dodds.

Moriya will be challenged by a Scot, Harry Kennedy, who is now a freshman at Michigan State College. Kennedy will be out to square himself against Phil Coleman of the Chicago Track Club, who edged Kennedy in a three-mile run in Chicago two weeks ago in 14:17.

About 350 trackmen from about 28 colleges and universities will compete in the 20-event program.

Michigan's Eeles Landstrom, a Finnish pole vaulter, is expected to have an easy time in his event. Landstrom has been vaulting between 14 feet 4 inches and 14.6.

Victor Milligan, an Irishman who is a graduate student at Purdue, is the class of the mile run. He ran the distance in 4:05 in what probably will be called the 20th century's most fantastic race.

Ahead of Milligan were English man Roger Bannister and Australian John Landy, both under four minutes. The occasion was the British Emipre games last summer.

Michigan State College has entered three Australians, led by Kevin Gosper. Gosper is heavily favored in the 600-yard run.

Gene Sarazen Favored In PGA Senior Field

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) —Defending champion Gene Sarazen was the logical favorite in the 54-hole PGA seniors tournament opening today.

A newcomer to the ranks of the seniors (golfers at least 50 years old), "Lighthorse Harry" Cooper, is figured to give Gene the most trouble. Cooper twice was runner-up for the U. S. Open championship.

Another threat is Denny Shute, also a first year senior and also twice a National Open runnerup.

Back for another shot at Sarazen is Al Watrous of Birmingham, Mich.

Southside Hawks Top Ice Cadets By 4 To 1

The Southside Hawks topped the Ice Cadets 4-1 in Junior Hockey league play last night with Dick Duchaine, Charles Martin, Jerry Hanson and Greg Anspaugh scoring for the winners. Glen Anderson registered the lone goal for the losers.

Saturday the Southside Hurricanes meet the Southside All Stars at 1 and the Northtown Rockets play the Southside Raiders at 3.

Hawks And Sentinels Play Saturday Night

Team	W	L	T	Pts.
Canadian Soo	3	1	1	14
Marquette	6	5	1	13
Escanaba	4	4	2	12
Portage Lake	5	4	1	12
Calumet	4	4	1	11

The Escanaba Hawks will battle for second place in the Northern Michigan - Ontario League standings Saturday night when they play host to the Marquette Sentinels at the fairgrounds rink at 8:15.

The Sentinels moved up into second place with a 7-4 victory over the Calumet Radars last night. Marquette has 13 points in the standings, one less than league-leading Canadian Soo. Escanaba is tied for third with 12 points and a win would shove the Hawks over the Sentinels. Soo also plays at Calumet Saturday night.

Escanaba has not fared too well in its series with their neighboring rival from Marquette. The Sentinels copped 4-2 and 10-4 victories in the first two meetings but settled for a 3-3 tie in their last clash here.

Undefeated String

The Hawks, however, have shaken off a slow start when they were handicapped by lack of ice and are on an undefeated string of five games in which they made a rapid climb out of the NMO League cellar.

Marquette has also been on an impressive string of undefeated games, except for 4-3 loss to Calumet Jan 22.

The renewal of the intense rivalry is expected to draw one of the largest crowds of the season Saturday night. Because of Escanaba's high standing in the league, the Hawks' recent surge in home games and perfect weather for hockey, the Hawks are hoping for renewed interest and a boost in the slumping attendance.

All Hawks will be available for the Marquette game with Ben Artwich slated for duty in the nets.

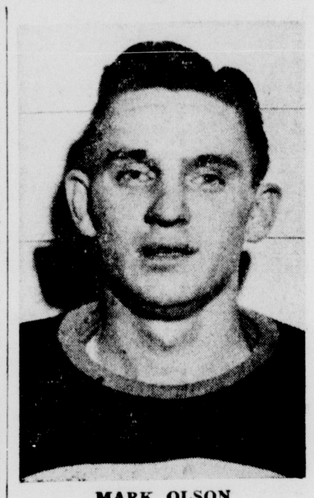

Olson Top Scorer

Player-coach Mark Olson contines to lead the Hawks in the scoring department. His two goals against the Canadian Soo Sextet this week boosted his point total to 27. He has 15 goals and 12 assists.

Steve Butorac, hard-working Canadian winger, is second in the list with 21, Buddy Provo is third with 13 and Warner Wilson has 10.

Butorac leads in penalty time with 14 minutes, defenseman Joe Nogalo has 12, Olson 10 and Floyd Stac eight.

At home this season the Hawks have won three, lost one and tied two while on the road they have won one, lost three and tied one.

MARK OLSON

The Hawks have scored 48 goals for the season while opponents have registered 64. Two lopsided defeats account for the difference, with the Hawks coming out on the short end of a 14-3 game at Portage Lake and a 10-4 verdict at Marquette. In all other games combined the Hawks have outscored their opponents by one goa.

Hockey Sidelights

Cuff notes: After what happened at the end of the first period of the Escanaba-Canadian Soo 4-4 tie last Tuesday night, now would be a good time to talk about getting a new hockey time clock for the indoor rink . . . Escanaba was leading 1-0 when the first period ended but the Canadian Soo boys didn't know the period was over because the buzzer on the old clock didn't work.

So what happens? . . . They scored the all - important tying goal 18 seconds after the buzzer should have sounded . . . Talk about a tense situation . . . It could have broken up the ball game, but Nick Thiery, official timekeeper, and Referee Cy Clements did a good job of explaining to the Soo sextet that the goal actually was scored 18 seconds after the first period should have ended . . . The hubbub subsided, and it was safe to continue the game the second period . . . The goal did not count . . . So if anyone would like to contribute toward a new time clock, the line forms at the right.

It was a tough one not to win after a tremendous showing against the classy Soo six, but the 4-4 tie was worth two points and a second place tie . . . The fighting Hawks can go into a first-place tie with the Soo by beating Marquette here tomorrow night . . . . Escanaba is playing fine, interesting hockey now . . . Every sports fan should take advantage of the Saturday Night Special tomorrow and see Escanaba and Marquette tangle . . . . Hope the clock works tomorrow night!!

WARNER WILSON

Clarence Matt played his best game of the season last Tuesday . . . He scored a goal, too . . . Floyd Stac also came through with his first tally as a Hawk . . . Joe Ricci is just about ready to fly again . . . Bill Suriano is even more effective than last season . . . Buddy Provo's play has improved 100 per cent since he learned to keep his head up looking for the play . . . His passbacks to Mark Olson last Tuesday were pretty to watch . . . It was his sharp pass to Olson that set up the breakaway score against the Soo . . . If you want to watch clever poke checking (knocking the puck out of danger with the stick) and hook checking (stealing the puck from a foe with the stick), keep your eyes on Warner Wilson and Joe Nogalo.

Incidentally, Nick Thiery, dependable ticket taker for years without remuneration, is happy to serve as timekeeper this year even under precarious conditions such as existed when the buzzer didn't work at the end of the first period Tuesday night . . . "At least I get to see most of the game this way," he said. "It's a good job, but please—— let's get a new time clock, eh?"

Good to see police protection at the games now . . . Providing this winter sport is a community effort that deserves everyone's support . . . Winter sports fans throughout the Upper Peninsula respect the Escanaba Hawks for their fight against tremendous odds.

Rod Boucher, Dave Mileski, Eddie Provo and Tony Kutches are four junior players on the Escanaba Black Hawk team who show plenty of promise . . . With the help of Aimo Muhonen, Mike Goymerac, Dick Johnson and Mike Otis, the junior team beat the Gladstone-Indians 9-1 and the Menominee Wildcats 8-0 . . . Mr. Provo has a fast junior team there . . . After four and a half seasons in the Northern Michigan Hockey League, Escanaba is beginning to develop junior hockey players capable of playing fast hockey.

Rocky's Sore Nose Gets Test Feb. 12

NEW YORK (AP) —For almost three weeks Rocky Marciano has been training for an unveiling — Feb. 12 — the day they will let somebody take a poke at his nose to see how it holds up.

There is a noticeable scar on the left side of the heavyweight champ's bugle, a memento of his fight with Ezzard Charles in September. Nobody knows for sure what will happen when it gets hit.

Marciano was in town Thursday to accept the Sport Magazine award as "Man of The Year in Sports."

"I don't think the nose is going to bother me," said Marciano. "The other day the bag bounced back and hit me on the nose, but nothing happened."

Nation's Top Quarterbacks Go Quick In Pro Football Draft

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—Two of the slickest quarterbacks of the 1954 college season—George Shaw of Oregon and Ralph Guglielmi of Notre Dame—may ply their trade within 35 miles of each other next fall and make contenders of two of the weaker sisters in the National Football League.

Shaw, a 185-pound throwing whiz who led the nation's major colleges in total offense, was the surprise bonus pick of the Baltimore Colts in Thursday's prolonged professional draft, enabling the Washington Redskins gleefully to pluck the All America Guglielmi.

Wilbur Ewbank, the Baltimore coach, explained his choice of Shaw, a third-string All America, over the highly touted engineer of Notre Dame's fighting Irish.

Best In Country

"We think Shaw is the best quarterback in the country, barring none," he said. "We know he is a great passer—he proved it with a losing team. We weren't too sure about the passing of Guglilmi because Notre Dame isn't essentially a passing team."

The Colts in their first regular pick seized Alan (The Horse) Ameche, stampeding All America fullback from Wisconsin, giving them a potent one-two punch on the ground and in the air.

Seers of the professional circuit immediately labeled Baltimore a team to be contended with in 1955. The Colts were next to last in the Western Division last fall with a 3-9 record.

"The draft tightened the league considerably in my opinion," said Commissioner Bert Bell. "Baltimore and Washington particularly strengthened themselves."

Today league directors concern themselves mainly with business matters and may even get their teeth into proposed rule changes by late afternoon.

Pass Dead Ball Rule

The main proposal is that the ball be declared dead as soon as a player hits the ground. This is to prevent piling on. The suggestion of a seven-point touchdown is headed for the ashcan.

The draft reflected the usual high regard for Notre Dame teams. In the first five rounds, seven members of the Fighting Irish were picked. Oklahoma and Southern California followed with three each.

In the eligible All America list, those picked on the first ballot included Ameche, Guglielmi, halfbacks Dicky Moegle of Rice (San Francisco) and center Kurt Burris of Oklahoma (Cleveland).

Frank MacDonald, Miami (Fla.) end, was picked on the seventh ballot by Baltimore. Other All America players were either ineligible or had figured in previous drafts.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

YPSILANTI (AP)—Western Illinois won its fifth IIAC basketball game Thursday night, defeating Michigan Normal 79-69. Western Illinois has only one defeat in conference play. Normal has a 3-3 record. Forward Charles Teaberry of Normal was top scorer of the game with 22 points.

ADRIAN (AP) — Unbeaten Adrian stretched its winning streak to 13 games Thursday night with an 88-63 MIAA basketball victory over Alma, which has a 3-4 league mark. Center Henry Hughes collected 37 points for Adrian to tie a school scoring record set in the 1952-53 season by Robert Orhman.

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP) — Hughie Coyle and George Joseph scored 19 points each Thursday night to lead Assumption College to an 88-68 basketball victory over Lawrence Tech.

Lions, Packers Draft Home State Grid Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — The Detroit Lions failed to land any of college football's "glamor" boys in the annual National Football League draft, but coach Buddy Parker selected four players from Michigan schools.

Among their 30 choices, the Lions picked Lee Riley, speedy halfback from the University of Detroit; Bert Zagers, hard-hitting Michigan State halfback; tackle Walter Jenkins, a "sleeper" from Wayne Wayne University, and quarterback Duncan McDonald of Michigan.

Pick Auburn Back

The Lions, picking 11th in the regular draft, made Dave Middleton, fleet Auburn back, their No. 1 choice. In the second round, the Lions picked Jim Salsbury, highly rated 220-pound guard from UCLA. Darris McCord, 6-foot-3, 235-pound Tennessee tackle, was Detroit's third choice.

Altogether, a dozen players from Michigan were selected by the various NFL teams.

LeRoy Bolden, Michigan State halfback with the question mark knee, was Cleveland's sixth-round choice.

Green Bay, always strong in picking players from the Michigan area, selected Henry Bullough, Michigan State guard; Art Walker, Michigan tackle; and Fred Baer, Michigan fullback.

Packers Grab Bettis

Green Bay leaned heavily on Big Ten linemen in the draft, making them four of their first six choices.

Tom Bettis, Purdue guard, was the Packers No. 1 choice, followed by end Jim Temp of Wisconsin. Bullough was Green Bay's fifth selection and Norman Amundsen, Wisconsin guard, was sixth.

Other players from Michigan were drafted like this: Pittsburgh—Ellis Duckett, Michigan State end; Washington—Ron Geyer, Michigan tackle; Baltimore—Nick Manych, Michigan Normal end; and Philadelphia — Vic Postula, Michigan State back.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Vonnie Colby Upset Victim

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Greta Leone, a native of Denmark who took up golf four years ago because it looked like fun, pulled the first big upset of the Helen Lee Doherty Amateur Tournament.

Miss Leone, who lives in Chicago, ousted medalist Vonnie Colby in the first round Thursday when the Florida girl gambled and lost on No. 16.

Vonnie tried to clear a canal with her second shot at 16 but dunked it into the water. Greta played it short and safe, won the hole and took the match 1-up.

Other favorites survived the first round play. Defending champion Grace DeMoss Smith of Miami rallied to defeat young Joan Toski of Livingston, N. J., 3 and 1.

Barbara Romack, current national amateur champ and runner-up for medalist honors here, defeated Los Angeles' Wiffi Smith 4 and 3. Miss Romack was only one over par for the 15 holes, best medal score of the day.

Pat Lesser of Seattle defeated Dot Kirby of Atlanta 4 and 2. Miss Kirby, 1951 national amateur queen, sealed her doom on No. 16 when she, like Miss Colby, banged her second shot into the canal.

Others making the second round included Joyce Ziske of Waterford, Wis., and Mrs. Marjorie McMillen of Decatur, Ill.

Speed Skaters Begin Action

ST. PAUL (AP) —Ken Bartholomew, at 34 a U. S. speed skating patriarch, matches savvy and stamina against the challenge of youth again this weekend in the National Outdoor Championships.

Senior men's winner nine times since 1941, the Minneapolis veteran is after an unheard of sixth straight championship in competition Saturday and Sunday.

His stiffest opposition is expected to come from young Stan Fail of Paramount, Calif., who supplanted Bartholomew last week as Great Lakes champion at West Allis, Wis.

Fail last year won the intermediate boys championship in the nationals.

Returning to defend her senior women's title is pretty Pat Gibson, 20-year-old University of Wisconsin student who will contend with, among others, Barbara Marchetti of Detroit, national champion in 1952.

Third holdover champion in the field is Mary Novak of Chicago, winner in the junior girls division for the last two years and prior to that a two-time champion in the juvenile girls.

College Files Protest On Basketball Tourney

TULSA, Okla. (AP) —St. Louis University has filed a protest against the Missouri Valley Conference sponsorship of a Christmas holiday basketball tournament, Dr. George Small said today.

Dr. Small, conference executive vice president, said St. Louis contends it would lose about $15,000 because it would have to cut out three home games in order to play in the tournament.

The Baseball Writer's Assn. of America was founded in 1908 at Detroit.

Howe's Brother Ties Wings 3-3

DETROIT (AP) — Gordie Howe, star right winger of the Detroit Red Wings, tried to sound annoyed, but there was a revealing tone of pride in his voice:

"How about that kid brother of mine? I invite him to my house, he eats my steak, then does a thing like that."

The younger Howe — Vic Howe of the New York Rangers — rifled in a third-period goal which gave the Rangers a 3-3 tie with the Red Wings Thursday night.

Vic's goal, his first this season, came in the final period and capped a comeback which saw the New Yorkers erase a 3-1 deficit.

Danny Lewicki had put the Rangers back in contention two minutes earlier with his 22nd goal of the season.

It was a costly tie for the Wings. It prevented them from pulling to within a single point of the league-leading Montreal Canadiens; now they're two points behind the Frenchmen.

Detroit got a "gift" goal in the second period when Glen Skov accidentally bumped Ron Murphy, causing the New York defender to knock the puck into his own net.

Bill Dineen and Dutch Reibel scored the other Detroit goals.

Hawks Finally Beat Minneapolis Lakers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New York Knickerbockers absorbed the second defeat this week by the Warriors Thursday night in a Philadelphia doubleheader. The score was 92-83. The Boston Celtics lost to Rochester 98-92 on the same card and dropped to second place in the National Basketball Assn.'s Eastern division as Syracuse measured Fort Wayne's Pistons 94-79.

The Milwaukee Hawks finally turned the tables on Minneapolis in the league's other game. After bowing five straight times to the Lakers, the Hawks won 85-79 at Huron, S. D.

Trabert And Seixas Win Aussie Doubles

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)—Tony Trabert and Vic Seixas followed up their Davis Cup triumph by becoming today the first American team to win the Australian National Doubles tennis championship in 22 years.

Playing in 88-degree heat they whipped Australia's Lew Hoad and Ken Rosewall, 6-3, 6-2, 2-6, 3-6, 6-1.

Elleworth Vines nd Keith Gledhill were last Americans to win the Australian National Doubles and that was back in 1933.

Trabert, the only U. S. survivor in the singles, battles Rosewall in the semifinals Saturday. Seixas was eliminated by Hoad in a quarterfinal match.

League Plans Finance Drive

Friday, Jan. 28 will be the start of the annual finance drive of the League of Women Voters of Escanaba.

Calling on public spirited men and women of the community will be all the members of the League, working in teams of two.

The work of the League is financed by dues and gifts of members and by contributions of individuals who believe that an investment in the League is an investment in Democracy.

League Funds are spent only for League work. No salaries are paid to League officers, National, State of Local.

In an age when the people are bombarded with information on all sides of a public issue, it is very difficult for the busy person to properly evaluate the information with which he is presented, League officers pointed out. One of the chief functions of the League is to select certain public issues and after much study by its members to present to the public, true and objective facts on both sides of the question. Thus at the present time the League of Women Voters is working hard to compile nonbiased and comparable facts on the chief problem confronting Escanaba today, the electric utility problem. These facts are to be presented to the public in a series of meetings open to all who are interested in the problem.

If, after all the facts on both sides of a public issue have been evaluated, and the majority of the League feels that the evidence is strongly in favor of one course of action, it will take a stand on the issue.

The League of Women Voters is a non-partisan organization open to all women citizens of voting age. Information on issues selected by League members reach government and citizens through, public meetings discussion groups, radio and TV programs, newspaper and magazine stories, communications with public officials, League publications, testimony at public hearings, recordings and films. For many of these mediums money must be spent and it is for this reason that all those interested in good government are asked to help.

The finance drive will close Friday, Feb. 4.

MEALS MISSED

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — There are 500 meal tickets that won't provide a meal. Burglars stole them from Mrs. William F. Davis' restaurant. They also got $13 in cash. Mrs. Davis says she has a way of telling which tickets were stolen.

Income Tax Trouble? Even The Experts Make Mistakes

HOW TO CORRECT YOUR FORM — Two lines of form 1040 are incorrect. Government tax experts have changed their original interpretation of the new law in these two instances —too late to change the official forms. If you are one of the many taxpayers who have retirement income credits, correct your form as indicated before figuring your credits. The corrections may result in a larger retirement income credit to many taxpayers.

Wall Street

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market advanced today with steels and aircrafts providing the bulk of the strength.

Actually the list displayed a lot of irregularity in its over-all move ahead with many lower sections in evidence.

The best gains were in a range of one to around four points higher. Losses with few exceptions were small.

Trading was at a moderate pace well below the 3½ million shares traded in Thursday's higher market.

Bethlehem Steel, which fell 3¾ Thursday, in disappointment when a split proposal failed to materialize, was up between one and two points today. Other steels were modestly higher.

United Aircraft was ahead between four and five points and others in that section were strong. The aircrafts had the benefit of a prediction of atomic powered bombers to come.

U. S. government bonds were down on the heels of the U. S. Treasury offer to refund some of its debt with a new 40-year 3¼ per cent bond.

Corn To Suffer Loss By Borer

WASHINGTON (AP) —The Agriculture Department said today field surveys point to a serious infestation of the destructive European corn borer this year in the nation's corn belt.

The degree of the infestation will be determined largely by weather conditions during the spring, the department said, adding that potential egg-laying borer moths are much more numerous now in many areas than at any time since 1949.

A serious infestation in 1949 cost growers an estimated loss of 350 million dollars.

Warm, moist weather during the spring season is generally favorable to the development of corn borers. Cool, dry, windy weather is usually unfavorable.

The insect cuts its way into stalks of the corn plant, snapping plant vitality. Experts say a single borer in each plant can reduce crop prospects an average of 3 per cent.

The department said the survey showed that in the 13 north central states, corn borer populations last fall averaged 223 for every 100 stalks of corn. This compares with an average of 114 for each 100 stalks found in a similar survey in the fall of 1953.

Furniture Stealer Trapped By Sink

CINCINNATI (AP) — Osie Wright, 35, got away with everything but the kitchen sink—and was caught when he came back for that.

Wright had entered the home of Willie Turner and removed every bit of furniture and personal property except the sink, testimony in Criminal Court showed Thursday.

Then he came back for the sink, and Turner discovered him there kneeling down with pipe wrench in hand.

A jury convicted Wright of housebreaking.

Showboat Has Fire

LANSING (AP)—A briefly spectacular blaze attracted hundreds of spectators to the banks of the Grand River when Lansing's old showboat caught fire Thursday night. The blaze was brought under control in an hour. Damage to the boat, owned by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, was estimated at less than $1,000.

POLICE LESS VISIBLE

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Uniformed police patrolmen have been issued blue caps to replace white ones. Police Chief Jack Heard said the switch was made because the white hats were too easily spotted by law-breakers at night.

1955 Ice Revue Is Shaping Up Nicely
